Carmen drives toward coast; thousands flee

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Carmen, its winds at 110 miles an hour and growing, bore down on the Gulf coast Friday night and forecasters tried to pinpoint the storm's target.

Emergency preparations began all along the coast, ravaged only five years ago by Hurricane Camille.

The New Orleans Weather Bureau said gale winds and tides up to four feet would reach the mouth of the Mississippi by Saturday afternoon. Oil companies began removing personnel from offshore rigs, and housewives started a run on hardware and grocery stores for candles and food.

SMALL BOATS fled into port or up rivers for shelter and the Red Cross began moving disaster workers into place.

The Naval Air Station at Pensacola flew 147 of its planes inland, and the aircraft carrier USS Lexington moved out to sea from Pensacola to ride out the storm.

A hurricane watch was posted at noon for a 500-mile stretch of gulf coast, from Grand Isle, La., at the mouth of the Mississippi River, to Cedar Key, Fla., in the Big Bend area of the state north of Tampa.

The hurricane watch is an advance alert. A hurricane warning will be issued after forecasters determine where the storm is likely to hit.

The New Orleans hurricane warning office said hurricane warnings would be issued for a portion of the area "later tonight."

At 6 p.m. PDT Carmen was about 360 miles south of New Orleans, at latitude 24.9 north and longitude 90.2 west, moving northward at 10 miles an hour with "some slight increase in size and strength likely."

At Grand Isle, La., where the National Weather Service anchored the western leg of its Gulf Coast hurricane watch, the city hall was boarded up and officials were meeting to decide about possible evacuation plans for the island's 2,336 residents.

MORE THAN a thousand oilmen, who work the blue water rigs far out in the Gulf of Mexico, streamed ashore Friday in Louisiana by helicopter and crewboat.

They remembered the terrible cost of the big Gulf hurricanes such as Audrey in 1957, which killed 550 and destroyed Cameron, La.; Betsy in 1965, which roared

Secret U.S. talks with Cuba told

By ADOLFO G. MERINO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Representatives of Cuba and the United States have held secret meetings in Switzerland to explore ways of ending the 13-year-old rupture in relations between the two countries, diplomatic sources said Friday.

The Organization of American States (OAS), meanwhile, took the first step toward lifting its own Cuban quarantine.

Diplomatic sources said Cuba's foreign minister, Raul Roa, talked with U.S. officials in Berne, Switzerland, during an official visit to that country between Aug. 27 and Sept. 3.

STATE Department and White House officials said they had no knowledge of any such meetings. But sources insisted several contacts took place during that eight-day period between Roa and U.S. representatives whom they did not identify.

In the OAS, the governments of Costa Rica, Colombia and Venezuela officially set in motion the diplomatic process that could lead to an end of the Cuban embargo when OAS foreign ministers meet in Quito, Ecuador, Nov. 11.

The three Latin nations asked the OAS council to meet quickly in Washington to discuss the issue and prepare recommendations for the Quito conference. The council agreed to do so.

The Council, which meets at the Pan American Union in Washington, will have at least two preliminary sessions this month — one on Monday and another Sept. 19. The latter meeting will be attended by several Latin American foreign ministers.

The council will then recommend to the Quito meeting whether or not the diplomatic and economic sanctions imposed on Cuba in 1964 should be lifted. The drive to end the embargo is believed to have a good chance of success.

State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said the U.S. "will study the proposal very carefully and consult with our OAS members."

Cuba and the U.S. broke diplomatic relations on Jan. 3, 1961 in one of the last foreign policy decisions of the Eisenhower administration.

The official hostility between Washington and Havana, which began shortly after Fidel Castro took power in early 1959, reached its climax during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Former President Richard M. Nixon continued the Cuban policy he inherited from two Democratic predecessors.

President Ford, in his first press conference on Aug. 28, suggested his Cuban policy might change under appropriate conditions.

Firms out to grab big hunk of U.S. jet sales

FARNBOROUGH, England (AP) — Six of Europe's leading aircraft manufacturers have joined forces to build commercial aircraft capable of cutting into the lion's share of the market now held by American firms, the companies announced Friday.

They signed an agreement without fanfare last week, informants said at the Farnborough air show, annual showcase of the British aviation industry.

The companies, which include the builders of the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde airliner and the European airbus, are British Aircraft Corp. and Britain's Hawker Siddeley; France's Aerospatiale, and West Germany's Dornier, Messerschmidt-Bolkow-Blohm and VFW-Fokker.

Informants said governments of the three countries have backed the accord and have indicated to their national airlines they should buy from the consortium rather than from U.S. companies.

Ford vows to beat inflation

By GAYLORD SHAW

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford pledged Friday night that before America celebrates its 200th birthday on July 4, 1976, his administration will have halted "the tyranny of double-digit inflation ... the cruelest kind of taxation without representation."

Precisely four weeks to the day after he ascended to the presidency, Ford came to Independence Hall to address a dinner commemorating the 200th anniversary of the First Continental Congress.

He used the occasion to set for the first time a timetable for his administration's anti-inflation battle, although he offered no specifics on his battle plan.

"We are going after the public enemy of inflation in 1974 and we will lick him before July 4, 1976," Ford said.

Puffing on his pipe after a dinner of snapper soup and capon, Ford was introduced by Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp as "a man of the people" who is working "to restore openness and integrity in government."

The President joined the 1,500 dinner guests in applauding a song written by Shapp, "I'm Proud to be an American" when entertainer Mike Douglas joined the Marine band in performing it.

White House Press Secretary Jerald terHorst, responding to newsmen's questions, disclosed after the dinner that Ford had decided to establish a "clemency review board" similar to that set up by President Truman after World War II to handle amnesty cases for deserters and draft dodgers.

Ford defended his approach to the problem of inflation, an approach that has drawn criticism from some in Congress.

"Like the patriots who met here 200 years ago, we may seem to move cautiously and too deliberately," Ford said. "But I hope no one will underestimate the fighting ability of Americans today the way some did in 1774."

"I warn you, as wise old Ben Franklin did, that if we do not all hang together we will certainly hang separately. But we will not hang separately nor will we fall divided. We are going after the public enemy of inflation in 1974 and we will lick him before July 4, 1976."

The President cautioned that hard times still lie ahead.

"We will have our Valley Forges, our summer soldiers and our sunshine patriots," he said. "But we are the descendants and heirs ... of the patriots who assembled here 200 years ago tonight ... we must not let them down."

"With your help, we will win the fight against inflation," Ford said. "What better way can we begin our third century of independence as a nation of liberty under God and brotherly love for all?"

Ford did not spell out or detail his battle plan to fight inflation in his address.

HE SPOKE TO 1,500 guests gathered on a rainy night beneath a yellow and white striped tent across the street from Independence Hall. Before his address, he paused with Shapp to be photographed beside the Liberty Bell.

The President devoted the bulk of his remarks to the nation's historical heritage and strengths. It was toward the end that he noted that the delegates to the First Continental Congress two centuries ago faced some of the same problems confronting Americans today — "skyrocketing prices, shrinking purchasing power, shortages, hoarding and financial speculation."

Then he spoke of the series of economic conferences which he launched at the White House Thursday.

4.9 million Americans idle

Jobless rate edges up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged up to 5.4 per cent of the work force in August with both young and older men bearing the brunt of the added joblessness, the government reported Friday.

Unemployment, after hovering between 5 and 5.2 per cent throughout most of the year, has risen by one-tenth of a per cent in each of the past two months.

"Although neither the July nor August change in unemployment was statistically significant, the change over the two months appears to represent a slight increase from earlier in the year," the Labor Department said.

The official hostility between Washington and Havana, which began shortly after Fidel Castro took power in early 1959, reached its climax during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Former President Richard M. Nixon continued the Cuban policy he inherited from two Democratic predecessors.

President Ford, in his first press conference on Aug. 28, suggested his Cuban policy might change under appropriate conditions.

will rise to about 6 per cent by year's end.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan said earlier this week that the another 100,000 jobs if unemployment reaches 5.5 per cent, Brennan said.

In its report, the Labor unchanged for the past two months and up only 375,000 since January.

The rise in joblessness last month was reflected primarily in the unemployment rate of adult men, which rose from 3.5 to 3.8 per cent. The rate for young men aged 20 to 24 jumped from 8.1 to 9.3 per cent, while the rate for men 55 and over moved up from 2.9 to 3.2 per cent.

Offsetting the unemployment rise among adult men was a slight decline among teenagers, whose jobless rate declined from 16.2 to 15.3 per cent.

Unemployment rates for most other groups in the labor force remained unchanged last month.

Payroll figures showed that average hourly earnings rose by three cents over the month and 33 cents over the year to $4.24.

Department said 4.9 million Americans were unable to find jobs last month, an increase of about 19,000 since July. Total employment stood at 86.2 million, practically the same as in July.

Informants said governments of the three countries

The statement added: "The cooperation may later be extended to include other European airlines and aircraft companies, and is another step forward in European cooperation."

The move has been in the wind for some time.

Insiders believe the consortium, as yet not named,

could produce a new family of European airliners within the next decade.

Past efforts to build up a multinational European aviation industry have met with little success. The Concorde has a 10-year history of soaring costs and bickering between the British and French partners.

The A300 airbus developed by France, West

Germany, Britain, the Netherlands and Spain, has been more successful. Fifty have been sold.

Economist sees long fight

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's ranking economic adviser said Friday that inflation and unemployment will creep right on upwards while economists grope for solutions. Senate leaders disagreed on whether a lame duck Congress could do anything to help.

"Inflation is just not about to go away quickly," said Alan Greenspan, the new chairman of Ford's Council of Economic Advisors.

"It's taken a very long time coming. It's going to take a great deal of work to defuse it."

Addressing a White House news conference one day after the first of Ford's skull sessions with economic experts, Greenspan did say that a forecast increase in grocery prices might prove to be a "blip" rather than a firm trend.

But he predicted clothing prices would rise somewhat and unemployment would also worsen in a "turgid" economy.

REPUBLICAN Leader Hugh Scott scoffed at that view and took a political swipe at the Democrats in a rejoinder that suggested Ford's congressional "honeymoon" may be wearing thin on the economic issue.

"The only reason for staying in session is because you're afraid to go home," Scott said.

On Capitol Hill, the Senate Democratic and LABOR Department figures, released Friday, showed unemployment increased another one-tenth of one per cent in August to a nationwide level of 5.4 per cent of the work force.

Versatile actor Otto Kruger dies at 89

Combined News Services

Otto Kruger, the smooth-voiced actor who could play kindly fathers and oily villains with equal skill, died Friday on his 89th birthday.

Death came in Woodland Hills at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital, which is supported by the film and television industry. Kruger had long served on the board of the hospital, which he entered in August after suffering a relapse from a stroke.

He had suffered a series of small strokes since then, a hospital spokesman said.

Kruger was one of Hollywood's most versatile actors, as well as one of the busiest. He once complained mildly that his career went in cycles — "for a while I played sad husbands, then I got nothing but lawyers. Then I was a doctor, and during the war I specialized in Nazis. Lately I've been playing sugar daddies."

Born in Toledo, Ohio, and educated at Michigan and Columbia universities, Kruger worked as piano tuner, cattle puncher and merchant seaman before turning to acting during a penniless period in the Middle West.

His first job was with a repertory company at $5 a week. He made his way to leading man in the 1920s and was hailed by impresario David Belasco as "the hope of the American stage."

With the advent of talkies, Kruger's polished diction and tall good looks made him a serviceable leading man and character actor. During the 1930s he crossed the Atlantic regularly to appear in English movies and take part in early television.

Among his movies: "Treasure Island," "Men in White," "Springtime for Henry," "Dracula's Daughter," "Thanks for the Memory," "Duel in the Sun," "Payment on Demand," "Smart Woman," "High Noon," "Magnificent Obsession," "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" and "Sex and the Single Girl."

In later years he made frequent television appearances in such series as "Climax," "Suspense," and "The Law and Mr. Jones."

OTTO KRÜGER

Kruger is survived by his widow, Sue; a daughter, Mrs. Ottalie Laybourne, and three granddaughters. A memorial service will be held Monday. Funeral services will be private.

Mourning

President Ford and some of the Army's famous old soldiers joined in mourning Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, who was buried Friday on a rain-drenched knoll in Arlington National Cemetery.

The President and Mrs. Ford traveled to the Ft. Myer Chapel to take part in funeral services which also drew Cabinet officers, generals from all over the world and hundreds of Abrams' comrades from World War II through Vietnam.

Among the 600 mourners filling the chapel were Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. J. Lawton "Lightning Joe" Collins and Gen. Alfred Gruenthal, who led American forces in Europe in World War II, when Abrams was a battlefield tank commander.

Nonelectric

Kenneth W. Reitz and his wife have notified the Virginia Electric and Power Co. to cut off electricity to their apartment and plan to live in the past in protest against high utility rates.

"My bill was $90 and it's usually $40," said Mrs. Reitz, whose husband is an assistant produce manager at a supermarket in Virginia Beach, Va. "We live in a one-bedroom apartment and don't have a dishwasher, don't cook with electricity and don't run the air conditioner very much. We live on the cool side of the building and aren't home very much."

Mrs. Reitz said they'll open windows to cool off, dress and read by kerosene lamp, and cool their food with plastic bags of ice in the bottom of their electric-less refrigerator.

Wholehearted

Betty Ford said Friday she will campaign for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment for women if they are not treated the same as men.

All pubs and betting shops as well as jobs, housing, schools, hotels and other aspects of life will have to give equal treatment to women under the law to be proposed to Parliament if the Labor Party is returned to office at an election expected next month. But, according to a government White Paper on "Equality for Women," they will have to give up their monopoly of the profession of midwives, and the law will not apply to employment in private homes, the clergy and religious orders, armed services, all-men or all-women clubs and schools set up only for boys or girls.

"I certainly am for it in every sense of the word, and my husband knows that very well because his ribs are so sore," said Mrs. Ford, referring to her nagging of the President on the equal rights issue.

The first

Ida Fuller, the first person ever to receive a Social Security check, celebrated her 100th birthday Friday in Battleboro, Vt.

Miss Fuller got her first check from the Social Security Administration on Jan. 31, 1940. She invested about $22 in the program and over the last 34 years has received more than $20,000, a niece said.

Miss Fuller said her position as first was just a matter of luck. "That wasn't really anything I had to do with," she said. "I was just the first one. That's all."

Her first check nearly matched her investment, $22.54. Her 417th check this month was $109.20.

Expelled

The Jesuit priest who baptized a baby whose mother advocated the right to abortion has been expelled from the order.

The Rev. Joseph O'Rourke called the expulsion "a scandal" carried out by "impenetrable autocrats" and charged that his superiors "were made bagmen and errand boys for higher ups" in Rome.

O'Rourke said in New York that he would remain in the priesthood.

The controversy arose last month when the Catholic Church refused to baptize the 3-month-old son of Carole Morreale of Marlboro, Mass., saying there was no "moral certitude" the child would be brought up a Catholic. Mrs. Morreale, 20, had been quoted by a local newspaper as saying she supported Bill Baird, a champion of the right to birth control abortion.

O'Rourke, who lives with a community of Jesuits on Manhattan's Upper West Side, baptized the child.

Shambles

Larry and Barbara Cabness of Houston came home from burying their only son, 16-month-old Jason, to find police standing at their front door.

Inside, their home was in shambles. Missing was $10,000 in jewelry and household goods. Also gone was a delicate charm bracelet holding cherished pictures of Jason.

"To come back from losing your only child, with the medical and funeral expenses, and then to have to suffer such a loss is more than anyone should have to take," Cabness said Friday, fighting back tears.

"The latest pictures of Jason were on my wife's Jason bracelet. She cherished that thing and now it's gone."

Jason was born with a congenital heart disease. He died Monday, his father's 27th birthday.

Lotteries' fate up to Congress

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. William Saxbe warned 13 states Friday that their lotteries may be illegal. But since all 13 disagreed, he said there is no reason for citizens to stop buying tickets until the dispute is resolved. Winners, he said, "will be paid." At a stormy meeting with governors and lottery officials of the 13 states, Saxbe said he does not want to put the lotteries out of business but must enforce the federal law unless Congress amends it. The officials who attended argued unanimously that the law applies only to private gambling games and not to states, and some accused Saxbe of stirring up a false issue. The law in dispute forbids mailing lottery information, interstate movement of equipment, and participation by federally chartered banks.

Phone pact ratified

WASHINGTON — Members of the Communications Workers of America have approved by a better than 2-1 margin a new nationwide three-year contract with the Bell Telephone System, the union announced Friday. According to a union spokesman, the vote was about 210,000 in favor of the contract and 103,000 against. The Communications Workers, with 500,000 members employed by the Bell System nationally, was the largest of several unions to ratify the agreement. The contract provides for wage increases of 7.1 to 10.7 per cent in the first year, with additional raises of up to 3.3 per cent plus cost-of-living adjustments in each of the following two years.

PARIS — Finance ministers of the United States, Japan, Britain, France and West Germany will seek solutions to worldwide economic problems at a secret meeting place in France this weekend, French Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Foucault said Friday. "This is not a distress meeting decided at the last minute," Foucault told newsmen. "We have been planning this meeting since July 23 when I conferred in Paris with the U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon." He said the ministers will discuss all major topics confronting the international financial community.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An Israeli force intruded into the south Lebanese village of Aita al Shaab apparently in search of arms and possibly of Palestinian guerrillas Friday, but was driven back by Lebanese artillery, official sources said. The Southern California Rapid Transit District and striking bus drivers and mechanics still were about $20 million apart in negotiations, state conciliator Thomas McCarthy said Friday.

McCarthy told the Los Angeles City Council that "the problem is almost completely a matter of money."

"It's very difficult to find a middle ground between parties that are still over $20 million apart after four weeks of strike," McCarthy said.

Management and the two unions representing the bus drivers and mechanics met at the bargaining table again Friday, but McCarthy's announcement to the council was the first public mention of how the negotiations were going.

Board of Supervisors Chairman Kenneth Hahn met with union officials and RTD management for a "thawing out" session Wednesday. Both sides expressed optimism that some kind of settlement could be reached.

On Thursday, Gov. Reagan urged bus drivers to conduct a secret ballot vote on the RTD's latest contract offer, in an effort to end the 26-day-old bus strike.

Following Reagan's appeal, Earl Clark, general chairman of the United Transportation Union, which represents some 3,300 striking bus drivers, called Reagan's statement "ill-timed."

"The governor's action will certainly hamper negotiations," Clark said. But he added, Reagan's appeal would be given "every consideration."

"The governor's request that the drivers' union leadership submit the latest RTD offer to a secret vote of the membership supervised by the State Conciliation Service affords the hope of an early settlement of this very unfortunate strike," said Jack R. Gilstrap, general manager of the RTD.

Meanwhile, the city council unanimously adopted a motion urging the RTD and the unions to provide emergency bus service for children returning to school next week.

Councilman John Ferraro, author of the resolution, said that more than 600,000 children are scheduled to return to classes Wednesday. Last year, Ferraro said, some 90,000 students had bus passes.

"In the absence of public transportation," he said, "many children, particularly those children in low-income areas, would miss school or become dependent on the dangerous expedient of hitchhiking."

Accident nails down traffic

The intersection of Thurn Avenue and Victoria Street in Costa Mesa was turned into a sea of roofing nails about 9 p.m. Friday when a parked truck loaded with 50,000 of them was struck by an automobile, Costa Mesa police reported.

They said traffic was rerouted for more than two hours while city crews swept up massive piles of nails. Officers did not identify the driver.

Hahn labels smog device law a 'ripoff'

Associated Press

Legislation requiring installation of smog control devices on 1966-70 vehicles only in the South Coast Air Basin is a "$63 million ripoff," County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Friday.

"This law will result in a double standard for vehicle owners in the state of California and I believe this is unfair and unconstitutional," Hahn said.

700 attend emotional rites for murdered USC students

BEVERLY HILLS (AP)

Nearly 700 persons attended an emotional memorial service Friday for two USC students who died in an execution-style slaying Tuesday along the university's sorority row.

The somber 35-minute ceremony for John Davis, 22, and his attractive 19-year-old girl friend, Donna Walker, included the singing of Miss Walker's sorority song by her sorority sisters and a mournful rendition of the USC alma mater by the many students in attendance.

ance.

The Rev. Canon Kermit Castellanos officiated at the service, which was held at the fashionable All Saints Episcopal Church where the Davis family are members.

A private burial service was scheduled.

Davis, a senior at the university, and Miss Walker, a sophomore, were found shot to death early Tuesday morning near Miss Walker's Alpha Delta Pi sorority house on the Los Angeles campus.

Police say they have been unable to establish a motive for the slayings nor do they have any suspects in the case.

My husband has a set of plates to a musical march his grandfather wrote in the 1880s. He would like to have a copy of the tune printed, but the plates are old and the ink must be rolled onto the notes. Do you know of any print shop that might be able to help us? E.S., Huntington Beach.

Lyle Smith of Belmont Shore Printing, 202 Covina Ave., said his shop probably can print a copy of the song for you. The minimum charge is $6. "Plates of that era usually were made out of zinc and they probably can be used on most modern proof presses," Smith said.

To their credit

I have an account with the Artesia Medical Clinic, 17821 S. Pioneer Blvd. I have noticed they credit overpayments on our account without sending out any statement. Since our insurance company pays the bill, we may have a credit on our account for months without realizing it. Is this standard practice with most medical organizations? G.S., Norwalk.

William Shaw, assistant administrator for the Artesia Medical Clinic, told ACTION LINE: "It is our policy to notify the patient whenever there is a credit balance in his account to ask whether he wants us to remit the balance or hold it in his account. If no notice was sent in this case, we deeply regret it but our policy, and certainly the policy of most clinics, is to notify the patient of the credit balance."

4 Europe chiefs off on century's top arms deal

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Four Western European defense ministers set off this weekend on a shopping trip to Paris and Washington for what is being called "the arms deal of the century."

Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway are in the market for 350 lightweight jet fighters to replace their aging F104 Lockheed Starfighters. The leading candidates are the French Mirage F1 M53 and two American planes — the Northrop YF17 Cobra and the General Dynamics YF16.

AT STAKE are not only immediate contracts worth $2 billion or more but a competitive momentum that could be worth $20 billion in eventual sales. Equally important, both the French and U.S. governments are making the deal a test case for whether the four nations put "European unity" above "Atlantic cooperation."

The Belgian, Dutch and Norwegian defense ministers will be in Paris over the weekend with French Defense Minister Jacques Soufflet. With the Danish minister, they will go on to Washington Wednesday to see U.S. Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

Belgium and the Netherlands must decide soon which plane to take, while Denmark and Norway can wait a year. One effect of the Dutch-Belgian choice may be the decision in December by the U.S. Air Force itself whether it will take the YF16 or the Cobra.

The sources said Dutch Defense Minister Henk Vredeling wants to ask the French and U.S. governments several key questions:

— Whether they can guarantee a maximum price, as a hedge against inflation or cost overruns.

— Whether the U.S. and French air forces themselves will promise to use the plane the four nations choose.

— Whether the French or U.S. governments will stand behind contracts guaranteeing that the four countries will get part of the work — mainly assembly — of the planes.

Both sides already have offered the four nations from 60 to 80 per cent of the work and have promised to incorporate Belgian-Dutch specifications in the final product.

NATO officials say they are pushing hard for all four nations to choose the same plane, to streamline armaments and trim costs.

Both officials say the choice of the Mirage would help the European industry, solidify European unity and might even lead France to join NATO military activities. U.S. officials, on the other hand, said the purchase of a U.S. plane not only would help offset U.S. military spending in Europe but would be a symbol of Atlantic solidarity to counter isolationist tendencies in Congress.

Army to seek new ad bids

By RICHARD PYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, concerned about controversy over the way a $40 million recruiting advertising contract was awarded, has decided to ask for new bids rather than extend its agreement with the current agency.

Pentagon sources confirmed that a decision has been made to open the bidding to all ad agencies, hopeful that the action will dispel suspicions about the handling of the contract now held by N.W. Ayer & Son, Inc., of New York.

An investigation by the Army's criminal investigation division found that Ayers felt was evidence of possible criminal misconduct by senior Pentagon officials in the 1972 contract award.

BUT their recommendation that the case be turned over to the Justice Department was rejected by the CID commander and Army lawyers, and the case was referred instead to the Army's own inspector general for study of "management procedures."

Some members of the CID investigating team reportedly complained to superiors that this was an effort to cover up the controversy by keeping it entirely within military control.

The Army, which originally denied there had been any findings of possible criminal activity or any such recommendation. Later it acknowledged the existence of the April 29 report.

Among those named in the report were Robert M. Froehliche, former secretary of the Army, and William H. Kraus, a Froehliche associate who cast the key vote in Ayer's favor as a member of the contract evaluation board.

Kraus and O'Connor have denied there was any favoritism in the contract award, and O'Connor said the complaints suggested "a plant to discredit Ayer so we'd lose the contract."

The Army declined official comment on the decision to reopen the bidding, although a spokesman acknowledged that such action has been under study.

AYER, which has held Army ad contracts for about seven years, won the current one over six other agencies in October 1972. The contract was for the 1972 fiscal year, with

Rocky confers with Kissinger, Dobrynin

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller, apparently in preparation for a major foreign policy role in the Ford administration, met for over an hour Friday with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Rockefeller refused to comment on the meeting when he met with reporters later, but a State Department spokesman said it was one of a number of foreign policy briefings lined up for Rockefeller.

"I'm just a private citizen and it would not be appropriate for me to comment on the meeting," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller refused to answer a number of foreign policy questions posed by reporters, saying any statement before his confirmation hearings before Congress would be "inappropriate." But when asked if he had any reservations about the administration's policy of detente with the Soviet Union, Rockefeller replied: "No sir."

Asked if the luncheon with Dobrynin signaled that he would play a major foreign policy role, Rockefeller said, "No, but I would assume these foreign countries would wonder what type of prospect I am. I've never met the ambassador before."

The White House has said Rockefeller will be given a number of foreign policy briefings and may sit in on National Security Council sessions prior to action on his nomination by Congress.

The meeting with Dobrynin was Rockefeller's fourth visit to the State Department in this past two trips to Washington. Earlier in the day he had breakfast there with Kissinger, and on his previous trip he met with the Syrian foreign minister.

Rockefeller and Kissinger are old friends. The secretary of state worked for Rockefeller prior to joining the Nixon administration.

Rockefeller began his public career in the State Department in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and he is considered an expert on Latin America, where he has vast personal holdings.

Rockefeller also met with Dixy Lee Ray, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). He said that meeting was related to the work of his Commission on Critical Choices for America.

Rockefeller said he has turned "a great deal of material" over to the two committees in Congress that will handle his confirmation. When asked if he was prepared for confirmation hearings, Rockefeller flashed a smile and said, "I'm ready."

'Inferiority' chasm big issue

By LESLIE H. GELB

WASHINGTON — President Ford announced Friday that the Soviet-American talks on limiting strategic nuclear arms would resume on Sept. 18.

A White House spokesman added that the American negotiators will "have an agreed position" by the time they return to Geneva. But that position, according to a number of administration officials, is likely to be a statement of general principles, objectives and approaches rather than a concrete proposal.

One official maintained that "this puts us back to where we were a year and a half ago." A high State Department official, on the other hand, said: "This is where we and the Russians agreed to be at the summit last summer, and when Kissinger goes to Moscow again in October, he will present some concrete ideas—although still not a proposal that looks like a treaty."

THE FAILURE to arrive at a new proposal is no longer the result of disagreement on basic issues among Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and others.

The main reason, by all accounts, is the chasm between past Soviet and American positions. There is no clear idea how this chasm can be bridged without accepting what administration officials see as "strategic inferiority." Compared with this difficulty, the differences within the administration are minor.

Kissinger and Schlesinger, officials say, are not now pressing for specific arms proposals. Both seem to be waiting for Ford, who is not well-versed in this subject, to reveal his attitudes.

MORE THAN a year ago, Washington began presenting a series of proposals to Moscow. The last one was to extend the interim freeze on missile launchers due to expire in 1977 and to limit the deployment of missiles with multiple nuclear warheads, known as MIRVs.

At the Moscow summit meeting last June—the Geneva talks had adjourned in March—President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet community party leader, could not agree on multiple warhead controls.

They settled on a pledge to seek a 10-year accord on offensive strategic weapons and on a two-year extension of the existing interim agreement.

By this interim agreement, which was signed in 1972, the U.S. was restricted to 1,000 land-based missile launchers and up to 710 sea-based missile launchers, with the comparable figures for the Soviet Union being 1,410 and 350.

THE AGREEMENT did not include limits on long-range bombers, of which the U.S. has about 400 and the Soviet Union about 125. Nor did this accord encompass MIRVs.

The U.S. already has thousands of multiple warheads and could have more than 10,000 by 1980. The Soviet Union is expected to begin deploying MIRVs in about a year. Given the size of the missiles the Soviet Union is developing, Pentagon officials speculate that Moscow could have as many as 17,000 multiple warheads mounted on their missiles by the mid-1980s.

Moscow and Washington have been at odds on almost every key issue in the negotiations, when Washington proposed overall equality in the total number of missiles and bombers on each side, Moscow responded that the U.S. total must include her more than 500 aircraft stationed in and around Europe and armed with nuclear bombs.

Washington would then counter that Soviet aircraft and missiles capable of firing nuclear warheads in Western Europe should be included. And Moscow would respond that the nuclear forces of other countries—China, Britain and France—should be part of the American total.

When Washington would propose an American advantage in the number of land-based missiles with multiple warheads, Moscow would counter that it wanted both the throw-weight advantage and equal numbers of land-based missiles with multiple warheads.

These differences were made more difficult to negotiate, in part, by a split on certain issues between Kissinger and Schlesinger. The secretary of state was eager to reach an accord limiting multiple warheads on both sides and was not as concerned about the spread between Washington and Moscow on numbers of land-based missiles with multiple warheads and discrepancies in launching power.

The defense secretary was more concerned about numbers, and he also did not want to push for a agreement on multiple warheads at the expense of reaching an accord that would cover other nuclear weapons as well.

These differences still exist in degree, but they pale beside the problem of reconciling Soviet and American strategic programs and negotiating approaches.

Soviet arms programs emphasize the development of large land-based missiles, and the Soviet negotiating strategy is to seek parity with the U.S. The American programs

Senate panel proposes S. Korean aid be cut off

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday proposed that American military aid to South Korea be sharply cut, and phased out completely by 1977, because of what it called "the increasingly repressive measures" of President Park Chung Hee's government.

The committee action, included in the overall foreign aid authorization bill reported to the floor of the Senate, reflected the irritation on Capitol Hill with the arrests in South Korea of numerous intellectuals, churchmen, and other opponents of the regime.

If upheld by the Senate and the House of Representatives, the committee move would set back severely the planned modernization program for the South Korean armed forces.

THE OVERALL bill reduced the administration's requests from $3.25 billion to $2.5 billion for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975, but does not affect other aid programs amounting to about $5 billion.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has not yet completed its deliberations on the foreign aid authorization.

The main thrust of the foreign relations committee action was to reduce sharply American military assistance and involvement abroad. Attacking the worldwide network of American military assistance advisory groups, the committee report said:

"Through this bureaucracy, the United States continues—almost habitually—to dispense hundreds of millions of dollars of weapons in pursuit of such vaguely defined goals as 'stability,' 'balance,' and the maintenance of friendly relations." Yet, in the committee's view, there is little evidence that such general purposes have actually been served by this massive and often indiscriminate program."

IN ITS REPORT, the committee cut sharply the entire military grant aid program, in which weapons are given free of charge, from $985 million requested by the administration to $550 million, and ordering that "the entire program, including all military missions, be phased out over a period of three years."

Because of concern over Israel, the committee voted to allow military grant aid after 1977 to be provided if there was specific congressional authorization.

Last year, the committee had voted to end the grant aid program in four years, but this was defeated on the floor of the Senate.

THE COMMITTEE, stressing the need to end the fighting in Cambodia, also cut from 200 to 175 the number of American officials permitted to be stationed in Cambodia.

Flournoy challenged at LBSU student session

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy fielded a wide range of questions from an audience of about 375 Long Beach State University students Friday after prefacing the session with his view that tuitions should be reduced.

Speaking in the Student Union, Flournoy said state universities and junior colleges should continue to offer tuition-free education; that University of California tuition should be reduced as soon as it becomes economically possible and that current student fees should not be increased.

ALTHOUGH sponsored by campus Young Republicans, the session's questions were mainly framed as challenges to Flournoy, e.g. queries about a $10,000 unsecured loan from former deputy Defense Secretary David Packard, obligations to a "screening" committee of prominent supporters of Gov. Reagan and the merit of Flournoy's New York trip later this month in search of campaign money.

Flournoy said upcoming campaign fund-raisers are expected to be applied to the Packard loan.

The Reagan panel invited Flournoy to the meeting last January to explore his views on public policy. Flournoy told the students. There were areas of agreement and disagreement, he said, but the group "won't control me."

FUND-SEEKING in New York is not rare, he said, noting that his Democratic rival, Edmund G. Brown Jr., "has been there a couple of times—this is my first."

Flournoy enlarged on his opposition to a unicameral Legislature for California as advocated this week by Brown.

Although it may work for Nebraska, the only single-house state, the cases are not similar, the candidate said.

All Nebraska legislators are elected on a nonpartisan basis, he said. The house has only 49 members with each member limited to introducing 10 bills per two-year session.

In addition, he added, Nebraska is a more homogeneous state and more rural than California and with out many of California's problems.

Flournoy cited his own experience as an assemblyman in receiving a Senate-passed bill containing "tremendous defects" or one whose detrimental impact had been

"unanticipated." He acknowledged the same situation probably applied to Assembly-originated legislation passed on to the Senate. But he concluded that the check of a second house look deterred serious legislative error and "restrains bad legislation."

He said he cannot oppose existing state leases for offshore oil drilling but asserted there should be a national energy policy taking into account all energy availabilities, including the Alaska pipeline and other alternatives plus strict adherence to state safety regulations on drilling and requirements for standby capacity to clean up spills.

Flournoy said he does not favor decriminalization of the use of marijuana.

Responding to a student who challenged Gov. Reagan's "indiscriminate" use of the veto, Flournoy said he would weigh the attitude of the Legislature in considering that power. He said also he would reintroduce the practice of former Gov. Earl Warren of holding hearings and getting a public evaluation of legislation before exercising the veto.

Airport bomb case going to grand jury

United Press International

The case of a man accused of planting a bomb at International Airport that caused three deaths and injuries to 35 other persons will be turned over to the Los Angeles County Grand Jury it was announced Friday.

Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch said that "due to the complex nature of the case" it would be presented to the grand jury starting Sept. 18. The district attorney would not elaborate on his statement, pointing out that a court gag order still was in effect.

The suspect, Murahem Kurbegovic, 31, appeared in Municipal Court Friday charged with three counts of murder. Judge Antonio Chavez continued the preliminary hearing until Oct. 8 when the court was informed the public defender assigned to Kurbegovic had been replaced by attorney Daye Shinn.

Kurbegovic was arrested Aug. 20 at a Hollywood hamburger stand where he allegedly was attempting to deposit a tape recording concerning the bombing in a restroom.

The bomb exploded in a locker at the terminal Aug. 6. Following the explosion an anonymous caller told the Herald-Examiner he was the persons being sought and had set the bomb to protest the fatal shootings of two Mexican aliens by police.

Police were successful in tracing the suspect and had him under surveillance when he was arrested.

Grower urges ban on secondary boycotts

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California agriculture will face the threat of violence until the Legislature bans secondary boycotts and recognition strikes, a grower spokesman said Friday.

The fact such a law isn't on the books "is creating a vacuum that is very serious," said O.W. Fillerup, executive vice president of the Council of California Growers.

Fillerup told a press conference that simultaneous strikes by Teamsters and United Farm Workers in Yolo, Solano and Sutter counties could lead to fighting between the two unions.

LEGISLATION is needed to provide for secret ballot elections for farm workers, ban secondary boycotts and recognition strikes, and create a farm labor board to handle labor problems, Fillerup said.

Such laws will protect grower rights and stave off the threat of violence, he added.

Reagan vetoes bill to abolish his aid plan

By SUSAN SWARD

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan vetoed legislation Friday that would have scrapped his controversial Community Work Experience Program requiring some welfare recipients to work for grants.

The Republican governor said he had "no hesitation" in vetoing the bill because it was largely a Democratic attempt to "undercut a vital part of our welfare reform program."

The three-year-old program requires some employable welfare recipients "for whom there are no private sector jobs to do public service work in return for welfare grants," Reagan said.

I AM FURTHER confounded by the spectacle of Democratic legislators voting en block to kill a program which has helped, and is helping, thousands of welfare recipients work their way off the rolls," the governor said.

Reagan first announced his intention to veto the bill at Sacramento's annual Host Breakfast attended by dozens of influential California business leaders.

Critics also have said

Reagan is counting many people who are getting off welfare on their own and not through CWP in the statistics which he cites in defense of the program.

Assemblyman John

Foran, D-San Francisco, authored the bill.

Democratic leaders have criticized the program, saying it hasn't been the success Reagan claims. They also dispute his figures on the number of recipients placed in jobs.

During the speech he also blasted the nation's federal food stamp program as a nightmare of red tape approaching a $4 billion mark and serving up subsidies for 16 million recipients.

REAGAN TOLD his Host Breakfast audience CWP had placed 47,000 recipients in regular jobs during the past year. He said the program was operating on a test basis in 35 counties.

"It tests the concept that an employable person will try harder to find a job rather than seek welfare if the welfare payment is tied to work experience assignments," Reagan added.

Critics also have said Reagan is counting many people who are getting off welfare on their own and not through CWP in the statistics which he cites in defense of the program.

Assemblyman John

Foran, D-San Francisco, authored the bill.

On other topics, Reagan told the Host Breakfast audience:

FOOD STAMPS: "Americans are a generous and compassionate people. They do not deserve this kind of abuse and fraud."

"Citizens standing in the check-out line at the market simply cannot understand why the able-bodied fellow in the same line is buying T-bone steaks with food stamps when their taxes paid for, and they are having trouble affording hamburger."

He said his task force had recommended a series of changes in the program that he would forward on to Congress.

He said the recommendations could save $270 million in California alone.

EDMUND BROWN JR.: Criticized him — without naming him directly — for his pledge not to raise general taxes during his first year in office.

"To those who tell you that they will try not to raise taxes for at least the first year, I have one answer. An increase in taxes in California is unnecessary period."

Lawmakers toil in after-hours session

Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — There they were, legislators, lobbyists, and legislative staffers, so engrossed in the state's business that they completely forgot about the time.

And the tooth fairy will give you a quarter tonight if you leave an extracted molar under your pillow.

While the legislators, lobbyists, and legislative aides were conducting the state's business—or whatever they were doing, the Sacramento Police Department commenced to conduct its business, because the place was a bar across the street from the Capitol and the time was 3:25 a.m.

The Sacramento Bee Friday reported that at least six legislators, including Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, were present when the police paid a visit to David's Brass Rail an hour and a half after the legal closing time last Saturday morning.

Badham, the Bee quoted eyewitnesses as saying, "disappeared into the men's room and successfully avoided notice by unscrewing the light bulb and standing on the toilet so his feet wouldn't be visible beneath the partition of the toilet stall."

Badham, however, told the Bee he wasn't in the bar that night and knew nothing about the incident.

The Bee identified the other legislators as Louis Papan, D-Daly City; John Thurman, D-Modesto; John T. Knox, D-Richmond; Ray Gonzales, D-Bakersfield, and John F. Foran, D-San Francisco.

The after-hours drinkers were breaking no law, the paper stated, but the proprietor, David Chow, and a bartender, Gilbert Rosales, were both cited.

Topless bar ruling appeal set

By BOB SCHMIDT
Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO—A decision taking away the right of the Department of Alcohol Beverage Control to regulate topless and bottomless bars will be appealed in the courts, Peter T. Sexton, the department's deputy director, said Friday.

The ruling, issued by the department's appeal board Wednesday, said that legislation which took effect in 1969 took control of regulating nude dancing out of state hands and turned it over to local agencies.

In decisions involving two San Francisco bars, the appeal board held that the Legislature "has preempted department rules" regarding the attire and conduct permitted in bars. Only cities and counties may regulate such activity, the ruling said.

Sexton said, however, that the ABC would continue to enforce the disputed regulations pending the outcome of the appeal.

THE TWO bars had both been found guilty last year of violating section 143.3 of the California Administrative Code. Their licenses had been suspended for 60 and 15 days, respectively.

That section and section 143.2 declared "the following acts or conduct on licensed premises (to be) contrary to public welfare and morals:"

The prohibited acts include nakedness by waiters, waitresses, or entertainers, the simulating of sexual activity by entertainers and the touching of themselves in a provocative manner.

Under those sections, the ABC has moved against scores of bars and has succeeded in closing the doors of some bars whose owners did not register a proper appeal.

Topless and bottomless bars have never been much of a problem in Long Beach. There has been only one such bar in the city, and its dancers were forced to put their clothing back on after the club owners were arrested for providing entertainment without a license.

CITY Prosecutor Robert W. Parkin said the case involving topless entertainment at Abner's Five, 4200 Lakewood Blvd., actually revolved around dancers performing in the cafe after it was refused an entertainment license by the City Council.

Parkin said he doubted, however, if the city would change its stance toward topless entertainment as a result of the appeal board ruling.

He added he thought the city "has been pretty effective in stopping it," even though "it's never been an out-and-out topless-bottomless thing here like in San Francisco."

City Manager John Mansell said he felt the city had "worked well" with the ABC in enforcing controls against such bars. He added he did not think the city's policy would change, since "the City Council and the police department have always been in opposition to this kind of entertainment."

HEW chief tells of policy on bias in North schools

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, responding to a charge that the government is lax in enforcing school desegregation in the North, said Friday there is more "fierce public opposition" in northern school districts.

"We are trying to use a policy of conciliation, of building support for (desegregation) plans that will produce these results," Weinberger said in an interview.

It was his first response to the report Thursday of a private civil rights study group which charged HEW with failing to enforce civil rights laws in Northern and Western schools.

CONCEDING it is "true" that HEW has evidence in its files of segregation in Northern schools, as the report charged, Weinberger said withdrawal of federal aid is an extreme weapon that does not work as well as persuasion, negotiation, discussion and conciliation.

"I think we also have to face the facts that we are dealing with very fierce public opposition to desegregation in many Northern cities," he said, "and that the bulk of segregated practices occurs in concentrated urban areas of the North where the opposition to busing and various forms of desegregation is far stronger than it appears to be in the South."

Regarding the fact that HEW is required to enforce the 1964 Civil Rights Act in all schools, Weinberger said: "We are enforcing it... The more effective we become in many areas, the stronger the public criticism, and that is something that eventually presumably will have to be resolved by the Congress."

HEW IS charged with enforcing Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act which provides that no person shall be discriminated against because of his race or national origin in any program receiving federal funds. The government has cut off federal aid to only one Northern school district, Ferndale, Mich.

Weinberger said: "If we just stand up here and crack whip to take away federal funds, which presumably might have satisfied this group that wrote the report, you would have had, I think, a far greater pattern of segregation and a far greater legacy of bitterness to overcome."

Cutting off federal funds simply promotes more segregation in many situations, he said, adding:

"We have made much greater progress in the South than we have in the North. First of all we had perhaps farther to go, but secondly, the public has been much more willing to accept desegregation in the South."

"ALL OF these things are going to depend to a considerable extent on what the public wants and what the public will accept."

"But to say we are not vigorous about our enforcement of desegregation laws or not carrying out the mandate of those laws simply because we have not withheld federal funds completely overlooks the fact that you could accomplish a great deal more in many situations by the processes we have followed."

Weinberger said HEW was able to produce substantially improved school desegregation in Baltimore and Boston and in many other cases "than if we had gone in with a blunderbuss and taken away their federal funds and a lot of funds they might use to help them desegregate and also put them in a frame of mind and attitude in which they would make no effort to try to comply with the law."

Deodorant soap held harmful

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deodorant soaps, promoted to American consumers for years as a social necessity, may be harmful because they kill too many germs, according to a new government study.

The $200 million-a-year deodorant soap business, led by such products as Dial, Lifebuoy, Irish Spring and Safeguard, may have to change some of its formulas as a result of the study — and in general prove that the germ-fighting ingredients it does use are safe and effective.

The review, part of the Food and Drug Administration's continuing study of all over-the-counter drugs, concluded in a draft report to be published soon that some germs on the skin serve a "protective function." If killed in the name of smelling good, it said, worse germs may take their place.

THE REPORT also casts doubt on the value of soap and other preparations used to clean wounds — saying that a wound is the best protection.

It also said surgical scrubs used by doctors should be as strong as possible because there is evidence that from one-third to one-half of all surgical gloves are ripped or punctured during the course of surgery, leading to post-operative infections.

As for deodorant soaps, the report said that because "these chemicals are absorbed into the blood stream, the panel is concerned about the prudence of exposing the entire body surface to these chemicals when alternative methods of odor control are available," it added.

EVIDENCE of absorption through the skin and possible brain damage previously led to a crackdown on hexachlorophene, an ingredient once used in some of the soaps but now available only by prescription. The report recommended that even the low level of the ingredient now used for preservative reasons in some soaps be banned.

L.B. mother shot; roommate arrested

A Long Beach mother was shot and critically wounded Friday evening while two of her three roommates allegedly watched the other fire one shot into her chest as he was toying with a .22-caliber pistol.

They allege Perez pointed the weapon at Mrs. Monnier and pulled the trigger, but the gun did not discharge. He tried again, they said, the second time allegedly hitting Mrs. Monnier in the chest.

Police said Judith Monnier, 21, of 927 Magnolia Ave., Apt. 2, was in critical condition at St. Mary Medical Center following the shooting, which occurred about 5:30 p.m.

Five hours later, the suspect, a Guatemalan identified as Jimmy H. Perez, 19, turned himself over to homicide detectives, who had been seeking him for questioning. He was booked on suspicion.

The roommates, who reported the incident to police, told investigators the shooting was accidental. They said Perez had played with a gun in the apartment on other occasions.

FORD INFLATION VOW

different from the inflation fighters of 1974," he said. "Then, as now, there were no easy answers. Then, as now, they had to depend heavily on popular understanding and public support."

FORD SAID HE had been "browsing through the Journal of the First Continental Congress" and had found remarks "that are amazingly contemporary." He singled out one resolution which imposed a form of colonial price freeze:

"... vendors of goods or merchandise will not take advantage of the scarcity of goods ... but will sell the same at the rates we have been respectively accustomed to do for 12 months last past ..."

Ford gave no indication, however, that his use of this 200 year-old resolution signaled a change in his opposition to wage and price controls.

But he said "the sense of urgency and unity which existed here two centuries ago" can still be found in America today.

He said unity is necessary to overcome "the tyranny of double-digit inflation (that) is our common enemy in 1974."

THE ADDRESS WAS Ford's third speech outside of Washington since he took office four weeks ago.

He was to return to the White House after his speech but planned to be in Pennsylvania again Monday to address an urban transportation conference in Pittsburgh as he accelerates his schedule of public appearances.

Earlier Friday, the reconvened First Continental Congress ended in harmony as delegates from the 13 original states unanimously reaffirmed the right of Americans to personal freedom, privacy and equal economic opportunity.

The resolutions, ironed out in a spirit of compromise and good humor, concluded the first formal business of the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The two-day meeting commemorated the 200th anniversary of the Congress where the chain of events began that led to the Declaration of Independence here on July 4, 1776.

PARTICIPATING IN the proceedings were delegates from New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

On privacy, the delegates called on Congress "to reappraise and, if necessary, to take action with respect to the potential threat to personal freedom and the right to privacy by uses and misuses in the collection and dissemination of data concerning or related to private citizens."

They struck out a phrase urging "proper restraints on all public and private information gathering agencies" after New York, New Hampshire, Georgia, Delaware and Maryland objected that this might be curtailment of the press.

THE RESOLUTION on "quality of life" was renamed "economic opportunity" by a dozen delegates who asked for a 10-minute recess to amend the original and then took 30 minutes to do the job.

The key change assured citizens of "equal access to job opportunities," changed from the original which said they have "the right to an opportunity for a decent job."

This resolution also pointed out that "too many Americans still face problems of poverty, employment discrimination, inflation, educational deficiencies and enterprise, leaving the hopes and dreams of the founding fathers unfulfilled."

Robert Scott Ehrenberg, president of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, jibed at four states — Georgia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina — for failing so far to adopt the equal rights amendment. She suggested the delegates from those states, who supported equal opportunity, should go back home and complete the job.

A final resolution called on the governors and delegates of the first 13 states to publicize the 1976 bicentennial and to urge Americans "to read and debate the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

RODNEY DORAN of Rhode Island pointed out that delegates to the 1774 Congress — also held in the same Carpenters Hall — were all men.

"This time we have six women delegates and two black delegates," said Doran, who is black.

Shapp, the Congress secretary, called twice for a roll call of states when voting on the resolutions.

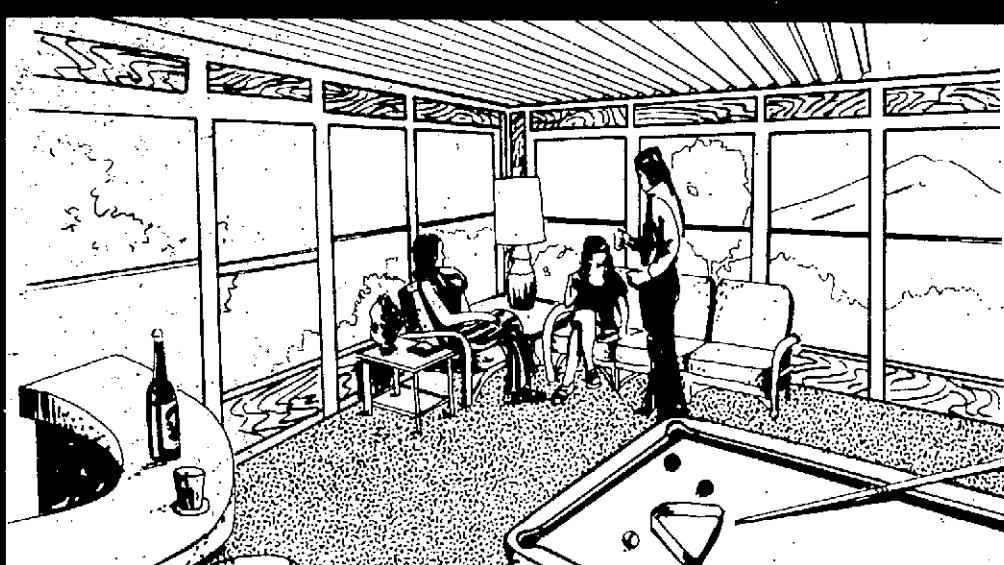

"Fine," said Gov. Mills Godwin Jr. of Virginia, the Congress president. "Will the secretary read the roll?"

Shapp leafed through the papers at his desk, then grimmed. "Anybody have a list of the states?" he asked.

Godwin concluded the ceremonies, after the delegates signed parchment copies of their adopted resolutions, by introducing a clergyman for the closing prayer — "Bishop Greenberg of Temple Sinai."

Rabbi Sidney Greenberg laughed with the crowd and said, "I wonder what they'll say when I get back to my synagogue."

up the Mississippi River; killed more than 70 and cost a billion dollars in damages in the New Orleans area; and Camille in 1969, whose 200 mph winds killed scores and flattened the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Thirty-seven serious storms have struck in the past four years.

Mrs. Charlie Sebastian, wife of a charter boat captain at Grand Isle, said, "Everybody's packing and we're just keeping in touch with all the bulletins and getting ready to leave on very short notice. We're also watching the tidal situation so we can get through Golden Meadow."

THE ONLY road into Grand Isle, a low, five-mile long sandspit on the open Gulf some 50 miles south of New Orleans, dips at the small town of Golden Meadow along Bayou Lafourche and if hurricane tides cut the road, the first cut will be there.

Mrs. Barbara Ogeron, who works at radio station KLB in Golden Meadow, was another keeping an eye on the hurricane.

"We're pretty hardy people. Nobody gets panicky. Evacuations in the past have been orderly. We've done it so often down here that people automatically know what to do. People get together and work together," she said.

The offshore workers being pulled in from their rigs, arrived in Venice, Morgan City, Grand Isle and other oil company coastal staging points. The big companies such as Shell, Texaco, Chevron, Mobil and Gulf had been watching Carmen's approach and began evacuation moves Thursday, increasing the tempo Friday.

In Pottstown, La., a century old settlement near the Mississippi River's mouth reachable only by boat and helicopter, about 50 residents and Mississippi River bar pilots were keeping watch, too.

"WE'RE GETTING ourselves prepared in case we have to pull out. We're just preparing for whatever might come along and whatever ships might have to get out in the Gulf," said Capt. Ernest Svendson of the Bar Pilots Association.

South Central Bell Telephone Co., issued an unusual statement calling on people in Louisiana to avoid using their telephones to make unnecessary calls due to the hurricane's approach.

"If the volume of these nonessential calls gets too high, they can block out other calls which are essential," said J.P. Pitts, general commercial manager.

Enrollment falls in L.B. Schools

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

About 2,225 fewer students are expected to enroll in the Long Beach Unified School District when school starts Sept. 16, district officials say.

James O. Edmondson, assistant director of research, said 1974-75 would be the 11th consecutive year of declining enrollment for the district.

Enrollment peaked at 74,564 students in 1963-64. Edmondson predicted an enrollment of 59,540 students this school year.

He attributed the decline to decreases in birth rate of more than 30 per cent in Long Beach, Signal Hill and Lakewood and to the closure of Long Beach naval facilities.

Elementary schools will have the steepest enrollment decline, Edmondson said. He predicted 1,050 fewer pupils than last year.

Kindergartens will enroll about 4,540 pupils Sept. 16 compared to the 4,686 who entered last September.

Total elementary school enrollment, according to Edmondson's forecast, will drop from last year's 32,811 to 31,600.

Junior high schools will be 359 students smaller, he predicted. Estimated enrollment at the end of the first school month will be 13,875. There were 14,234 students last year.

Senior high schools will have about 670 fewer students this fall. An enrollment of 14,050 is expected, compared to 14,720 last year.

LBSU students urged to avoid Seventh Street

Officials at Long Beach State University are urging students to avoid Seventh Street—the street in front of upper campus—in going to and from the college.

The reason is that East and West Campus drives, which provide access to the campus from Seventh Street, are under construction.

Tom Bass, LBSU's parking administrator, also urged students to avoid the busy "iron triangle" where Seventh, Bellflower Boulevard and Pacific Coast Highway come together.

He said alternate routes to the college would "provide better access to the campus and avoid serious traffic congestion and delay for parking."

He recommended that students coming south on the San Diego Freeway take the Bellflower or Palo Verde Ave. exits to the Atherton Street entrance of the lower campus parking lot.

Students coming south on the San Gabriel River (605) Freeway or from

From Pacific Coast Highway, students should take Westminster Avenue (the extension of Second Street) to Studebaker, then to Atherton.

Bass said no alternate route would be necessary for students who normally use the Seventh Street public parking lot because that lot can be entered without going through the campus.

Surplus city equipment is to be sold at public auction by the City of Paramount at the city's main entrance yard, 15328 Downey Ave., at 9 a.m. Sept. 28. Harry Bong, city manager, said.

Auction items include scrap pipe and valves, electrical and office equipment, a jeep, a flatbed trailer and an electric stove, Bong said. They may be inspected from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. beginning Sept. 24.

All sales are final and on an "as is" basis.

Capt. Carl J. Calkins, 40, who is retiring after 20 years with the Los Angeles Police Department, has been named Carson's director of community safety, a newly created post.

Calkins will assume the position Sept. 30. City Administrator E. Frederick Bien said. The new director will act as liaison between the city and the sheriff's department in administration of the county-city law enforcement contract.

He will coordinate activities of city workers involved in health, safety and protection services and be responsible for civil emergency planning and implementation.

Calkins was commander of operations at the Venice division of the LAPD when he retired. He also had served on the personal staff of Chief Edward Davis.

2 OK after film copter falls, burns

CAMARILLO (UPI) — A helicopter being used to film a scene for a Walt Disney Productions television show crashed and burned in a citrus orchard Friday but the two lone occupants were thrown clear of the flaming wreckage and escaped serious injury.

The craft, equipped with a special platform for a camera, was making a practice run for the filming when it suddenly plummeted as if it hit an air pocket and crashed in an orchard near a small hillside bordered by a cattle grazing yard, witnesses said.

The rented helicopter was totally burned.

The pilot, George Nolan, 29, who suffered only cuts and bruises, and Carl F. Marquard, 60, the cameraman, who had a broken pelvis, were in satisfactory condition at Pleasant Valley Community Hospital. Both men are from Los Angeles.

THE PRODUCTION company was to film a segment of a two-part show for the Walt Disney series called "Ragwing," about a boy and his grandfather who make a vintage airplane fly again.

Horrifying discovery

Mrs. Dora Turrubiate, 43, walks apprehensively, left, toward covered body of a child who had just been run over and killed by a truck. In photo at right, the distraught Mrs. Turrubiate is assisted by San Jose policeman after discovering that the victim was her grandson, 5-year-old Edward Flores. The child was killed instantly when driver Stephan Renfro, 26, backed up his truck while making deliveries and knocked the boy from his bicycle. Renfro was not held.

Supreme Court sets guidelines

Class action against airport fails

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Property owners located in an airport's flight pattern can't bring a class action suit against the airport for alleged damages caused by aircraft noise, vapor, dust and vibration, the state Supreme Court ruled Friday.

The 4-3 decision said that because each owner's right to recover damages depends on facts peculiar to his property, there is not sufficient "community of interest" to make the class action advantageous for the litigants or effective administration of justice.

The court ordered Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Peter Anello to dismiss the class action portion of the suit brought by Lands Unlimited and three individual plaintiffs who sought a total of $500,000 in damages.

Lands Unlimited, representing property owners in the flight pattern of the San Jose Municipal Airport, tried to bring class action on behalf of owners of 733 parcels of property in an effort to recover the reduction value caused by the aircraft flying overhead.

The trial court certified the case as a class action, and the City of San Jose challenged this ruling.

The high court's decision set out certain key standards concerning class actions. It said a trial court should determine as soon as practicable whether to certify a case as a class action.

The majority opinion by Justice William Clark said that before a class action can be maintained against a public entity, the trial court must find "substantial compliance" with the required procedures for filing a claim with that entity — in this instance, the City of San Jose.

But the court said there isn't sufficient community of interest to support a class action if every member is required to litigate numerous and substantial individual questions after the class judgement has been rendered.

It said class issues must be sufficiently numerous and substantial to make them advantageous to the parties and judicial process.

Popeil jury to begin deliberations today

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

The Popeil murder conspiracy case jury was sequestered at 1 p.m. Friday in Los Angeles to begin deliberating the fate of Mrs. Eloise Popeil, 49, and her boyfriend, Dan Ayers, 37, charged with plotting the "contract" killing of her wealthy husband.

Judge Mark Brandler ordered the panel locked up after giving final instructions to the seven men and five women who have heard the case for the past seven weeks. They will debate the three counts filed by the state against each defendant — one of murder conspiracy and two of murder solicitation.

Lodged in a Los Angeles hotel Friday night, the jury was asked to return to Superior Court Dept. 53 today to continue deliberations. If a verdict is not reached today they will return to the hotel for the day Sunday and return to the courtroom Monday for further deliberation.

Prior to the sequestering, the prosecution in final arguments dismissed the entire fabric of the defense case as "lies and dead ends."

Dep. Dist. Atty. Peter Bregman said Mrs. Popeil's testimony was a combination of big lies and little lies. He said Mrs. Popeil "never expected her husband (Chicago multimillionaire) to show up in Los Angeles to refute her lies."

Popeil is the alleged object of a kill-for-hire scheme which the state says evolved in Long Beach last December and January. Two proposed "hit" men, former co-workers with Ayers at McDonnell Douglas, testified they were offered money to kill the kitchen gadget tycoon.

Among the judge's 45 minutes of instructions to the jury was a key one which embodies a major defense argument.

This says that in addition to proof of unlawful agreement and the commission of an overt act in furtherance of that agreement, the conspiracy must have included the "contingency of committing the murder in California even though the agreement included the plan of killing in Illinois."

The defense has contended since the case came to Long Beach municipal court last January there was no crime of conspiracy because the alleged murder plan was to culminate in Chicago. They based their arguments mainly on the 1955 Buffum case ruling by the state Supreme Court which said that an agreement to commit a crime outside California does not violate the state penal code.

However, a prosecution star witness, alleged "hit" man Don Reed, told the jury Ayers had once told him the intended victim could be made available "on any street corner in California at any time."

2 L.B. matrons tell of $3,000 bilking

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Two Long Beach matrons testified Friday that two younger women — one black and one white — played upon their racial sympathies to bilk them of $3,000 in what police have described as almost classic examples of the old pigeon drop.

The women, unknown to each other, told their respective stories at a preliminary hearing before Long Beach Municipal Court Judge Eugene J. Long, who later ordered the two suspects arraigned on charges of robbery and grand theft. The arraignments were set for 9 a.m. Sept. 20.

THE SUSPECTS are Regina Taylor, 28, of Los Angeles, who now faces trial on two counts of strongarm robbery and grand theft in connection with charges stemming from both incidents; and Kaulani Marie Clayton, 19, also of Los Angeles, who is charged with one count of robbery in one of the cases.

Both were arrested by Long Beach Detective Ron Burbank as they were being arraigned in Los Angeles Superior Court May 16 on similar charges. Burbank said outside the courtroom that the suspects were picked up on the basis of their method of operation and photographs shown the victims. They're now free on $20,000 bail each — $15,000 in the Long Beach cases and $5,000 in the Los Angeles cases.

THE VICTIMS — one an 81-year-old East Long Beach woman, the other a 72-year-old matron who lives near downtown Long Beach — told stories that differed in only a few details. Between them, they told the court, they lost $3,160.

The East Long Beach woman testified that she had been working in her front yard April 17 when two young women drove up and asked where the nearest Post Office was.

According to the matron's testimony, the black girl said she had earlier seen a man drop an envelope; but when she went to give it to him, he turned hatefully on her and called her by a racial slur.

The envelope, it later turned out, was supposed to contain $1,900 in bills and a horse racing ticket worth an additional $12,000.

"I ASKED her why she didn't return the envelope to the police," the woman testified, "but the girl said the police wouldn't believe her because she was black."

Thereafter the plot thickened, with the two girls gradually drawing the woman into a scheme to share the girl's largess — if she would put up some good faith money of her own, she testified.

The woman then withdrew $1,900 from her bank account, but when she began to express reservations about the whole affair, she said, the black girl slugged her on the back of the neck, grabbed the money and fled with the white girl.

In court Friday, the al-

Teamster members fight flag-salute rule

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)

Five members of Teamster's Union Local 265 filed suit in federal court Friday charging that the San Francisco union violated their constitutional rights by prohibiting them from attending meetings unless they pledged allegiance to the flag.

The action was brought by Thomas Jack Webber, Charles Adams, Sharon Lindsey, W.H. Sherman and Anne McCombs — all Yellow Cab drivers. The defendants include Local 265 executive board members and business agent Emil Biagi.

The woman testified that the black girl said she had earlier seen a large white man drop an envelope as he was getting into his car, but when she retrieved the envelope and offered it to him, he called her a racially insulting name and slammed the car door on her. The envelope, it was said, contained $15,000.

ON A RUSE, and in the belief that she would receive third of the money if the owner wasn't found, she took $1,260 out of her bank account and put it up as good faith money.

She said the women later disappeared with the money when they said they were going to see the black girl's "boss" — an attorney who had allegedly promised to handle the matter for them. Later the woman discovered there was no such attorney.

Using large steel plates buried a mile apart and hooked to generators and computers, geophysical engineer Dr. H. Frank Morrison and doctoral

The plaintiffs seek injunctive relief to prohibit union officers or officials and others from interfering with their attendance at meetings unless they recite the pledge, from adjourning in order to prevent them from attending meetings and from imposing any disciplinary or punitive action.

The suit alleges that at three union meetings they have either been forced to leave at the start because they refused to pledge allegiance or the meeting has been summarily adjourned after a flag salute.

It said the five were ordered to leave a meeting on June 27. On July 25, the meeting was adjourned when two refused to leave the meeting after a voice vote to eject them, and the same pattern was Aug. 22.

The suit claims that the action violates their right of free expression and rights guaranteed by the Landrum-Griffin Act.

Union Secretary James Strachan said that if the five drivers would stay out of the meetings until after the pledge of allegiance is completed, there would be no problem. He said attorneys have told the board that the membership may legally vote on the floor to exclude members who refuse to give the pledge of allegiance.

Quake detection system near perfect

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)

Two University of California scientists say they are close to perfecting a method of detecting earthquakes as early as two months in advance.

The method picks up changes in electrical resistance in rocks thousands of feet below the surface, changes that are the prelude to a quake. It's based on research initiated in the Soviet Union in 1967.

Using large steel plates buried a mile apart and hooked to generators and computers, geophysical engineer Dr. H. Frank Morrison and doctoral student Aldo Mazzella detected an increase last June in electrical voltage at a point on the San Andreas fault system, which extends for several hundred miles along the California coast.

Two months after the change was noted, a 3.9 Richter-level earthquake occurred near Hollister.

A 3.9 tremor is not considered a major quake, but Morrison, a Canadian, said:

"That's what's so beautiful about our system. The bigger the earthquakes get, the easier they'll be to detect."

A second move to dismiss charges against former Manson family prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi was denied Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Bugliosi's attorney Harland Braun, sought the dismissal of perjury charges on the grounds he was denied a speedy trial under the Constitution.

Bugliosi and Daye Shim, defense attorneys in the celebrated Tate-LaBianca murder trial, were indicted by a grand jury for perjury June 28.

The indictments were made after an investigation of attorneys who allegedly gave reporter William Farr information for a story contrary to a court gag order.

Bolshoi Ballet has risks, too

By DAVID LEVINSON

Evel Knievel would not be a millionaire if the customers did not hope each time they bought a ticket that it was for his last performance. Ballet lovers have less to hope for, but there must lurk within their hearts the small thought that any performance might be the one where a great dancer makes a spectacular slip.

Part of the fun of the Bolshoi Ballet is that, like Evel Knievel or Richard Nixon, its dancers take risks. It is part of the pleasure, too, that the dancers prove, as they did at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium Thursday, that they are not superhuman after all.

IT MAY NOT. Once we have seen it bounce on the stage, the thought crosses our minds that one of these times when a ballerina is hurled through space she will not make it into her partner's arms. But the Bolshoi is more protective of its ballerinas than of its guitars. The Bolshoi men toss them around and lift them high above their heads with one arm, but they end perched securely on sturdy male shoulders, smiling.

Much of the Bolshoi Ballet is no more than this kind of athleticism: beautiful, breathtaking, but no more profound than a high wire act. It is probably no accident that Russia is the heaven of the circus and the ballet.

There is something more to the Bolshoi than that, although with all its security of technique it never achieves the deep feeling George Balanchine accomplishes with lesser dancers in the New York City Ballet.

The art of the dancer is too close to the art of the creator to thrive under a repressive regime. The Soviet Union produces magnificent violinists and pianists; it has not produced a single great composer or choreographer. (Prokofiev was great, but he grew up before the Revolution, and he lived and worked in the outside world before spending his mature years in the Soviet Union.)

WHEN Soviet dancers work with western companies, they can quickly put their incredible technique to eloquent artistic purposes, as Nureyev and Baryshnikov have demonstrated; while they remain with Soviet troupes there is surface glitter but little poetry.

The escape to the West need not be permanent, and it need not be by defection. Roland Petit choreographed the adagio from Mahler's fifth symphony for Bolshoi superstar Maya Plisetskaya. She presented the work for the first time in Paris last year.

It's first Los Angeles performance was given by Plisetskaya and Alexander Godunov on Thursday. Petit's choreography, which involves a good amount of nervous fluttering, will not be to everyone's taste, but Plisetskaya and Godunov manage in one dance to take the Bolshoi a fair distance into the 20th century and to achieve a depth of emotion that is absent from the rest of the Bolshoi's work — at least as reflected in the snippets from classic ballets being presented in the current U.S. tour.

PETIT TOOK as his story line the William Blake poem "The Sick Rose." The ballet is presented under its French title, "La Rose Malade," probably because a guitar flung with reckless grace in their "Gypsy Dance" may fall miraculously into the arms of another dancer facing another direction.

cause the simple English title sounds less tony. The choreography sticks pretty much to evocations of the literal meaning, such as it is, of the poem, in which Blake tells the rose that "the invisible worm that flies in the night, in the howling storm, has found out thy bed of crimson joy, and his dark secret love does thy life destroy."

Plisetskaya is in rose. Godunov, bare-chested, wears blue leotards. She runs. He follows. She falls back into his arms. He turns her loose, backs off and she twitters backward into his arms again. She touches his face, turns it toward her, looks into it, flees. They become enmeshed. Her arms flail. Finally she lies across his lap, immobile except for her arms, which slow and die into silence.

Plisetskaya does this with a vivid intensity unique among the Bolshoi dancers, and Godunov rises to the acting demands of his role. The program notes call this "a plotless ballet," and by Bolshoi standards it is; it goes beyond pantomime to metaphor, and thus to poetry.

The rest of Thursday's program was technique and story-telling.

The technique is easy, large in scale, incredibly strong and deliciously light. Nikolai Fedorov floats. The other male dancers are square, soldier. The women are pretty, their figures are handsome, and they are capable of a winsome delicacy that is quite contrary to our customary notions of Soviet dancing as weighted to emphasize the peasant qualities in women.

ON THE program at 2:30 p.m. today are "Ecole de Ballet," choreographed by ballet-master Asaf Messerer to present every dance teacher's dream class, and a batch of 19th century ballet tidbits. At 8:30 tonight there will be "Swan Lake, Act II," a "Carmen Suite" and more old-time ballets. The program at 8:30 p.m. Monday is similar. The closing performance Tuesday gives us "La Rose Malade" again, "Chopiniana" (also known as "Les Sylphides") and a pleasant assortment of smaller delights from the classical repertoire.

Plisetskaya dances at every performance. To each according to his work; from each according to the demands of the box office. The orchestra is a combination of local musicians and Soviet performers.

Conductor Yuri Simonov obviously knows the music, which is a good thing since some of the Los Angeles musicians do not. Most of the music is fit only for the Hartz Mountain canaries and the Bolshoi in any event, but by Tuesday the band may master the Mahler, which would be a help.

Church speed-up, healers, hillbillies, Sunday School

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM

RELIGION

By MARK CLUTTER

Churches and their ministers live according to a seasonal rhythm, with August the slowest month.

It is vacation time for both pastors and their flocks. Sunday services may be well attended, but the numerous other activities drop off.

Come Labor Day and the pastors are back on their jobs, hopefully rested, strengthened and sun-tanned. They'll need their strength. The cadence steadily increases until it peaks at Christmas time.

In January they get a little breather, but Easter is coming. This holiest of holy days calls forth all their strength and skill. Then they can slow down to a gallop. In June the rhythm starts slowing down.

MINISTERS are looking more and more like psychologists and psychologists are looking more and more like clergymen, says Dr. Donald E. Smith, president of the Institutes of Religion and Health.

Organized religion, he says, is "turning inward" after several decades of intense social action and upheaval, while psychology is being asked to make judgments on moral issues.

"The clergy are, at a rapid rate, returning to the healing role," Dr. Smith writes. "The psychologically trained clergymen thus recreates an ancient role, a role always filled by chosen religious figures in so many cultures.

"The crisis of our day, spiritually and psychologically, is a faith crisis," he said. "People do not know what to believe, since all beliefs have been attacked and all authority questioned."

HILLBILLIES provide fun in movies and comic strips, but the plight of real hillbillies is not entertaining.

In that big, rather vaguely outlined area of our eastern mountains called Appalachia 30 per cent of the families have incomes less than $3,000. In some counties unemployment is 50 per cent. Health conditions are poorest in the nation.

Answers to Questionnaire

Christian duty to state

Readers disagree in thoughtful answers

By MARK CLUTTER

Response to the questionnaire of two weeks ago was ample and intellectually stimulating. Christians are deeply concerned about most of these problems.

Sixty per cent of the respondents were female. Sixty per cent of all respondents were over 50 years of age. Therefore, the questionnaire may give an inaccurate view of Christians in the Long Beach area. However, the response of younger people was often more dogmatic, zealous and closed-minded. A measure of mellowing often comes with age.

The opinions of individuals do not fully reflect the party lines of their denominations. Latter-day Saints and Seventh-day Adventists seem to agree with their churches more closely. Roman Catholics, however, are often in disagreement with the official stands of their church.

Respondents were mostly practicing Christians. There were two Jews, two agnostics and an atheist. Many described themselves as "Protestant" — whatever that may mean.

This questionnaire, of course, reflects the views of church people, not the general public. It would be interesting to know what people up and down the street think.

A frequent criticism was that most of the questions could not be answered, "True" or "False." They require qualification. That was intentional. The blunt statements were made to stimulate thought and discussion. The author, if he were to answer his own questionnaire, would have to write 20 essays. And even then he might not be completely sure of himself.

1. The Berrigans and others were right in committing felonies to emphasize their protest against a war they believed was wrong.

The Berrigans have a few friends, but 75 per cent believe they were wrong in their actions. Many pointed out that there are legal and peaceful ways to protest.

2. Churches should force the government to prohibit abortions performed at the whims of foolish women.

Seventy-five per cent disagree. Their arguments include the right of individuals to make their own decisions and the belief that churches should not force the government. Several objected to the adjective "foolish." Many who believe in the prohibition termed abortion as murder.

3. Preachers should not discuss political or social issues from their pulpits.

A slight majority of 55 per cent disagree. Many of them qualified their opinion by saying that such issues should be mentioned only in relation to the teachings of the Bible. Obviously most Christians who responded go to church to hear the Gospel interpreted and to receive spiritual and moral guidance.

4. Since all wars are evil a Christian should refuse to bear arms in any cause.

Total pacifists are a small minority of 20 per cent. Many, however, feel that violence is justified only in self-defense and in defense of the country.

5. Hardcore pornography in movies and publications should be prohibited by law.

Sixty-five per cent favor prohibition and many others want tough restriction. Some underlined "hard-core," indicating that they do not disapprove of sexual frankness in movies and literature.

6. Churches should lead in the fight to end racial and ethnic discrimination.

Eighty per cent agree. Many quoted Jesus and St. Paul. Some, however, feel that the fight should be carried out by individuals rather than by the church organization.

7. Missionary emphasis should be placed on reaching godless Americans, not going to the other side of the world.

Sixty per cent disagreed. Many quoted Christ's Great Commission to go to all the world. Many respondents argued that churches should do both.

8. Christians should forget their denominational differences and form one universal church.

Sixty-five per cent disagree. Some say that this is a future ideal but not feasible in our time. Some feel that such a church is possible only after the Second Coming. Many feel that such a union would corrupt and weaken Truth.

9. To keep himself "pure and unspotted by the world" a Christian should not be a politician.

Christians today do not retreat from the world. Ninety-five per cent hold that Christians should be in politics. Many see dedicated Christian politicians as the best hope for the nation.

10. The old laws against "illegal cohabitation" should be restored.

Sixty per cent disagree. Many believe that individuals have the right to make their own choices.

11. "My country, right or wrong." An American's first duty is always to America.

Sixty-five per cent disagree, many saying that an individual's first duty is to God. However, a strong majority expressed patriotism.

12. There should be no laws of church or state which limit the rights of women.

Seventy-five per cent agree. Surprisingly, those who disagree are mostly women. Some feel that the Bible precisely explains the different role of women. Several expressed the belief that women should not be clergy.

13. Churches should be activists in the fight against all forms of injustice.

Sixty-five per cent agree, but disagree as to how this should be done. Many feel that churches should give their members the principles with which they can fight injustice. Others want their churches to become directly involved.

14. No church has all the answers to personal and public morality.

Seventy-five per cent agree. Many said that the Bible of Christ, not the church, is the true guide to morality.

15. Since the world is doomed, a person should prepare himself for the Kingdom of Heaven instead of concerning himself with social and political problems.

Ninety per cent disagree. Even those who believe that the Second Coming may be tomorrow hold that we must do our duty in this world. A young woman of Jehovah's Witnesses argues that one should give loving service to individuals instead of society.

16. Schools should be permitted to have brief, nonsectarian programs of prayer and Bible-reading.

Seventy-five per cent agree but with many qualifications. It was argued that such programs should be voluntary and perhaps after school.

17. Alcohol and tobacco should be prohibited by law.

The prohibitionists are still with us. Twenty-five per cent agree. Some would exclude tobacco. Some would like to see tobacco barred in public places, such as restaurants. Some who disagreed said such laws are unenforceable.

18. A person should disobey any law which is contrary to his religious beliefs.

Seventy-five per cent disagree. Some pointed out that with the many beliefs that exist such an attitude would lead to anarchy.

19. The nation should draft all young people, male and female, for two years of work in education, social projects, conservation, the military or other socially desirable project.

This radical idea was supported by 40 per cent. Many others favored it as a volunteer service, not as a draft. A number of women objected to drafting women.

20. Churches, many of which have expensive buildings on valuable land, should pay taxes like all other business.

Fifty-five per cent agree. Many argue that sanctuaries and schools should not be taxed but that other property, especially if used for profit, should be.

Woman cleric seeks ecclesiastical trial

SISTER ALLA . . . A Priest?

One of the 11 women ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in Philadelphia last month and whose ordinations were later invalidated by the House of Bishops hopes to be tried in an ecclesiastical court.

Another of the women, Dr. Jeanette Picard, widow of the famed oceanographer, has called on Episcopalians to put their contributions in escrow until women are permitted to be priests.

In the Roman Catholic Church some groups of nuns are demanding admission to the priesthood.

The women were ordained by four bishops, three of them retired. Some opponents of their action are demanding they be defrocked.

Why are Adventists so very healthy?

Do you want to be healthy and live a long time?

One way to do this seems to be to join the Seventh-day Adventists. And the Adventists want to know why. They are participating in a national scientific study to find out why Adventists are so healthy. Pastor Larry Kagel is the research leader for Long Beach.

A previous study by Loma Linda University of 50,000 Adventists in California showed their death rate to be about half the rate of other Californians for various causes.

The present study is part of an $800,000 research project funded by the National Institute of Epidemiologists are doing the research at Loma Linda University School of Health. The university is sponsored by Adventists. It is 60 miles east of

The project will take

12 magic principles

Is it possible to get on top of worry and other negative emotions? It is indeed and one way is through 12 magic principles, magic because of the amazing way they work.

These 12 dynamic principles were announced by psychologist Dr. Henry Knight Miller. Having passed these along to many people, I am sure they can produce results for anyone who really tries them. They will give you freedom from those deadly destroyers, the negative emotions. Read them and check your score.

1. Think health, talk health, act health and you will go far toward being healthy — provided, of course, you observe the common laws of health.

2. Be an actor, acting love instead of hate. What you act tends to become fact.

3. Shift your attention deliberately from the thing you are worrying about. The mind can only occupy itself with the object of its attention. So give attention to positives.

4. Cultivate opposites. If you are fearful, cultivate courage. If you feel weak, cultivate strength. If gloomy, stress joy. Act "as if" and you tend to become as you act.

5. Scrutinize your worries. Put them on the dissecting table; ruthlessly take them apart. You'll probably find there is very little substance to them.

6. Get a sense of time perspective. How little worries seem, how unimportant over the long period.

7. Cultivate optimism. Always look on the bright side. Keep the mouth lines up. Smile and be happy. William James, the psychologist, claimed that we are happy because we smile rather than that we smile because we are happy. Well, maybe so, but it's still a fact that happiness puts a smile on the lips. Cultivate optimism and develop a happy-life style.

8. Never talk trouble. It only activates it. Talk things up, not down. Talking tends to create by putting the immense power of thought to work. Don't practice negative autosuggestion by using destructive words.

9. Develop Ego-centric versus Ego-centric interests, meaning lose yourself in the exciting world. He who forgets himself finds himself.

10. Always superimpose the positive on the negative. Whenever a negative thought arises cancel it with a positive thought. Positive conditioning will result.

11. Practice creative affirmations such as: "Life is good." "I believe." "People are wonderful." "God loves me." Positive affirmations tend to reproduce in kind.

12. Say to yourself every day, especially when trouble stares you in the face, "I am a child of God." This will help by making you realize that someone is watching over you, always helping you.

Do these 12 principles work? Well a letter received from a 41-year-old engineer says: "When you suggested those 12 principles in response to the troubles I was having, frankly, I couldn't help regarding them as well-meaning but impractical advice. But I simply had to find relief. My doctor had warned me that I was heading for a crack-up. As an engineer my training was to work with scientific formula so I decided to apply these principles scientifically.

"It wasn't easy for I was a very negative person, but the more I worked at this 12-point formula the more I found myself getting on top of things. I wouldn't have believed it possible. Believe me I'm sticking with the twelve magic principles."

Scout troop to receive Old Glory

Rep. Glen Anderson will present a Flag that has flown over the White House to the Royal Ranger Scout Troop at the Christian Life Church, Wardlow Road and Pacific Avenue, Sunday, 6 p.m.

John W. Hurston, a veteran Assemblies of God missionary, will be the speaker. In 1948, after 10 years in Liberia, President William V. S. Tubman made him a Knight Official in the Grand Order of African Redemption.

He later went to Korea to found the Full Gospel Church in Seoul, which now has a membership of 20,000.

Church Leaders laud President

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Religious leaders are registering warm support for the new man in the White House, President Ford, including his moves toward some sort of amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters.

Major religious groups have urged such action.

There also were tentative gestures toward more direct communication between U.S. church leadership and the Presidency, a channel that largely had been shut off under former President Richard M. Nixon.

President Ford is a "sincerely religious person himself" who "takes the churches seriously," observes the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, head of the Lutheran Church in America.

Recalling that Ford twice met with denominational executives while a member of Congress, Dr. Marshall suggests in a letter to him that he hold similar meetings in his new capacity, adding:

"All of us can benefit from understanding each other in this time when both government officials and leaders in the churches have reason to be concerned with morality, justice and the welfare of people."

Give-and-take meetings with church leaders had been a common custom in past administrations, including those of Presidents Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, but lapsed under President Lyndon B. Johnson and by the National Federation of Priests' Councils, representing most Catholic priests.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops has backed conditional amnesty in 1971 and 1972 statements, but in the time since, several of them, including their secretary, Bishop Rausch, have urged unconditional amnesty.

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress, called Ford's call for leniency for war resisters a "most positive step."

Mormons to show thrift techniques

The Mormon Church in the seminar will demonstrate how its church methods of preparing members are preparing against food storage, supplies, growing world population and possible economic depression in a three-family preparedness seminar from 2 to 9 p.m. on Sat., Sept. 14 at the Anaheim Stake Center, 440 N. Locust St., Anaheim.

Recalling his meetings with church leaders at congressional prayer breakfasts, the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ commanded him in a letter for his "devotion to high moral standards."

Concerning his stand favoring some form of amnesty for draft evaders, in contrast to Nixon's opposition to it, Dr. Moss told the President:

"Your compassionate concern for the welfare of our youth ... is especially welcome. Your initiation of a process under which they may be reunited with their homes and homeland is a first step toward justice..."

Bishop James Rausch, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, called it a "constructive step," suggesting that unconditional amnesty should be considered in view of the need for national healing.

The President has said amnesty should be conditioned on some kind of alternative service, and is now consulting various groups on the matter.

Unconditional amnesty has been urged by the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Orthodox bodies, the Synagogue Council of America, including the three wings of Judaism, and by the National Federation of Priests' Councils, representing most Catholic priests.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops has backed conditional amnesty in 1971 and 1972 statements, but in the time since, several of them, including their secretary, Bishop Rausch, have urged unconditional amnesty.

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress, called Ford's call for leniency for war resisters a "most positive step."

Ford has said he won't revive them. An Episcopalian, he plans to continue worshiping at Emmanuel Church on the Hill in Alexandria, Va. as a congressman, he also has been active in Capitol

This is fine, but it causes many churches to ignore a large segment of the population. Many simple people need unwise advice.

The adult who has never been married gets some attention from matchmakers. But many people don't want to get married. And in any case should not be because of personality patterns. Many who are married should not be. The unmarried may be fine citizens and good friends, but they are "odd" in a family-oriented church.

The divorced have a greater problem. Divorce has become a common American custom. The wife is often one to one marriage in Los Angeles County. This does not make it any less tragic. Divorce is usually a severe emotional trauma. These people need activity, friendship and often counseling. Too often they receive moral censure instead.

The widowed, if they have belonged to the church for awhile, are best of all. They have their circle of friends. But the widowed unwise may find himself lonely.

Many pastors are trying to give singles a happier role in their congregations.

Kuwait in bid to buy British firm

By LEONARD KIRSCHEN

LONDON (AP) — Kuwait, an oil-rich Persian Gulf sheikdom, made a multimillion dollar bid Friday for a British real estate firm, the first Arab move to buy a British company outright.

The Kuwait investment office offered $20.4 million for St. Martin's Property Corp. Kuwait already owns 8 per cent of the firm's stock and is now bidding for the other 92 per cent.

The bid sparked a rally for real estate shares on the London stock market where the sector had been depressed by taxes and other curbs on property speculation.

THE BID came from Noble Gossart, a Scottish investment bank, acting on behalf of the Kuwait investment office, which has operated in London for the past 20 years. It is part of the Kuwait Ministry of Finance and handles the sheikdom's growing oil revenues.

The offer topped an earlier bid by Commercial Union, a British insurance giant. Commercial Union offered $166.5 million for 90 per cent of St. Martin's shares. The company already owns the other 10 per cent.

Kuwait made the bid on condition it does not have to go through the British Monopolies Commission.

Financial sources explained that merger agreements, before they become final, have a clause saying the deal is conditional on approval by the Monopolies Commission. This clause is often a mere formality and is used even if the merger involves firms

IMF lists $171 million in loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund announced on Friday the first distribution of funds for hard-pressed nations.

The fund drew from a $3.36 billion pool of money set up by the world's major oil exporters.

The first loans, to be repaid over a seven-year period at an interest rate averaging about 7 per cent a year, totaled $171 million.

The major initial recipient was Chile, which received $49.8 million. Other sizable loans were $36.7 million to Pakistan and $25.2 million to Korea. Other recipients were Bangladesh, Haiti, Kenya, Sri Lanka, Sudan and Tanzania.

The fund noted that its criteria in choosing recipients will consist of a showing of need on the part of the borrower and an indication that the borrower will institute appropriate measures to help alleviate balance of payments problems.

Saudi Arabia to buy U.S. bonds

By JUAN DE ONIS
New York Times Service

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia — Saudi Arabia has decided in favor of purchasing several billion dollars of a special bond issue by the United States Treasury, government financial sources said Friday.

The sources said the amount and terms were still to be negotiated, and they indicated that the purchase would be less than the proposal "well in excess of $5 billion" presented here in July by U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon.

AN AMERICAN diplomatic source speculated that the amount and timing of any purchases would be geared to progress toward a political settlement between the Arabs and Israel.

Saudi Arabia sees an active U.S. mediating role as essential for a settlement.

The response to this situation by the Saudi Arabian financial authorities, who have been highly conservative investors in the past, is beginning to take shape on many fronts.

Saudi Arabia has signed an agreement to lend the International Monetary Fund $1.2 billion, at 7 per cent interest, to be used to ease balance-of-payments use of the enormous oil income of this kingdom, which is estimated in the current budget at $26 billion for the fiscal year ending next July.

The budget earmarked $12.88 billion for government expenses and development investment this year, and allocated $14.79 billion as a reserve for future development investment.

This surplus, created by the 30 per cent increase in oil prices since last year, is what the Saudi Arabian government is being sought to invest by international financial organizations, the United States, needy countries, and a host of private banks and foreign companies.

SAUDI ARABIA has also agreed to buy a World Bank bond issue of $140 million denominated in Saudi-Riyals, for development financing in poor countries.

In addition, the Saudi Arabian authorities are going into international development financing in a direct way. They have shown a new willingness to provide grant aid for humanitarian purposes.

Hishan Nazer, the minister of planning, said that a Saudi Arabian development bank with a capital of $3 billion is to be set up this year to make loans to developing countries.

Economic dialogue to perk up under Ford

NEW YORK (AP) — In a series of late September conferences, President Ford will seek the anti-inflation views of the disparate elements that make up the economy, the view of "everyone in the country, every part of America."

And in doing so he is bound to find that those views are not in such full agreement with existing policies, mainly those of the highly independent Federal Reserve Board, as was suggested by the previous administration.

The fact is that not all

America is united behind Arthur F. Burns, the Fed chairman, who steadfastly — and some say, courageously — adheres to a relatively tight money policy as a deterrent to inflation.

The President will hear highly respected individuals ask in all innocence: How is it that high interest rates have failed to restrain prices, despite the almost theological belief that they do?

AND furthermore, why has the nation's housing been sacrificed on that altar? Why have the equity markets been ripped apart for that belief? Why has business been denied capital and forced to borrow from banks?

The Nixon administration's economic policy lacked conviction on its part and believability on the part of those affected. It was marked by compromise, impulsiveness and reversals.

THE GOALS of the summit conference scheduled for Sept. 27 and 28 illustrates the failure of past attempts. It reduces to new ideas, and those people with something to say got no nearer to Washington than the newspaper letters columns.

To "clarify" the present economic condition of the nation. To identify the causes of inflation. To consider "new and realistic" inflation restraints. To define "hardship areas" needing quick attention. To develop a consensus.

If these are the questions to be answered, then it is obvious that those now in power feel that little has heretofore been answered or maybe even understood.

Perhaps the easiest of the goals will be to clarify the present economic condition. On that there appears to be a consensus: the country, the entire trading world, is in a precarious condition because of inflation.

THE DILEMMA facing all these nations is that none of the alternatives open to them is completely desirable. Further inflation might lead to collapse.

Agreement on the causes of inflation will be difficult to achieve, but the discussion itself should be worthwhile. Not everyone is convinced, as the Nixon administration seemed to feel, that excess domestic demand is the culprit.

A large and growing number of academics, business economists and other observers believe that factors beyond domestic control are largely responsible for rising prices, and that the cure isn't to throw people out of work and depress business.

But whatever economic answers can be developed, they probably won't be any more important to some people than the feeling that Washington is listening, is trying to understand and does care.

New Garden State Bank rising

J. W. Hildreth, president of Garden State Bank, Hawaiian Gardens, has announced beginning of construction for new two-story, 11,575-square-foot building on Carson Boulevard, between Devlin and Seine Streets. Bank, now in temporary facilities, opened last December. Completion of new structure is scheduled for next January.

ACWA chief not typical union leader

NEW YORK (AP) — Murray Finley doesn't seem like a man who would pick a fight with Willie Farah. But he did, and won.

Finley, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, doesn't appear much like the typical union leader, either.

Soft-spoken and easy-going, he is relatively young as far as labor bosses go. At 52, he is the second youngest of the AFL-CIO's 33 vice presidents. He also is a lawyer.

And in the short time that he and Jacob Sheinkman, 47, have headed the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, they have brought aggressive leadership to an American labor movement which often is criticized as stagnating under aging leaders. Sheinkman is secretary-treasurer of the union.

Finley and Sheinkman showed through a successful boycott of Farah products that this seldom-used labor weapon still can be an effective organizing tool. After a 21-month boycott in which sales and profits plunged, the Farah Manufacturing Co., an El Paso, Tex.-based pantsmaker, agreed to recognize the union.

Now getting under way is a boycott of the Phillips Van Heusen Co., to back the union's effort to organize that company's shirt plants in Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Joking to a reporter during last month's clothing industry strike talks, Sheinkman said that he and Finley were afraid of getting a reputation as "two man hatters."

One industry spokesman suggested that they called the strike only "to assert their leadership."

"That's baloney," snapped Sheinkman, who, like Finley, is a lawyer. "We weren't looking for a strike and tried to avoid it. But we couldn't recommend 80 cents over three years (management's last offer), not with today's inflation."

THE UNION sought, and won after a 10-day strike, a $1 an hour wage increase over three years for workers who are among the lowest paid in manufacturing.

Day on credit board

Rowland W. Day, vice president and general manager of the Consumer Credit Services Division of Long Beach-based TRW Credit Data, has been elected to the governing board of the nation's first credit research institution.

Named the Credit Research Center, it was established in June at Purdue University's Krannert Graduate School of Industrial Administration to conduct research on the consumer credit industry and the economy, and to provide objective information to industry, government and consumers.

Day was elected to the nine-member board by the Center's advisory council. He had previously been appointed to the 40-member advisory council by the dean of the Krannert School in West Lafayette, Ind.

ALSO ON the advisory council, from Los Angeles, are Donald P. Crivellone, vice president, Bank of America; E. J. Dolan, assistant commissioner for California's Department of Corporations; and L. P. Juckett, senior vice president, United California Bank.

Maintaining his office in Anaheim, Day is a member of the International Consumer Credit Association, Consumer Credit Counselors of America, Consumer Credit Association of Southern California, National Association of Credit Management and Credit Managers Association of Southern California.

With a projected five-year budget of $1 million, the Center is supported by donations from companies including Bank of America, TRW and United California Bank.

TRW, Credit Data, a leading consumer credit reporting agency, is a division of TRW Inc., diversified corporation,

Trade center status improves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles area is rapidly improving its position as a world trade center.

Sitting strategically on the eastern edge of the Pacific Rim, it is looking forward to a new era of prosperity of exporting and importing.

From 1971 to 1973, exports through the Los Angeles Customs District soared from $1.79 billion to $3.27 billion. In the same period, imports rose from $3.08 billion to $5.65 billion.

The Pacific Rim has been called America's next great economic frontier with its 33 nations representing expanding economies in every stage of development. Many of these countries have vast untapped deposits of minerals and oil.

The industrial colossus is, of course, Japan. But

Grand opening

Citizens Savings and Loan Association has cut ribbon at new Long Beach branch, 100 Ocean Gate. Celebration, continuing through today, includes giving away of books assembled by teller Mary Forgas and Andre Robin, regional vice president-manager.

Tonnage handled in these ports in 1973 increased 10 per cent over 1972. A like gain was registered by air cargo moving through Los Angeles International Airport. Air cargo accounts for more than 30 per cent of the value of all exports from Los Angeles and 14 per cent of the imports.

The Chamber of Commerce reports that while the greater Los Angeles area conducts foreign trade regularly with more than 140 countries worldwide, nearly 50 per cent of its trade volume is with nations situated around the Pacific Rim.

Irwin Mervish has been named general manager of the West Los Angeles store. He was then promoted to head of stock, department manager, and then divisional sales manager of the Lakewood store.

In 1969, King became buyer of boys' furnishings, and has most recently been buyer of the Mach Ten Shop.

THE Los Angeles (area) stands out as a powerhouse among these nations and commands a most advantageous position. Although the Los Angeles area represents less than one per cent of the total population, its gross regional product accounts for seven per cent of the Pacific Rim total. The Los Angeles gross regional product ranks third among the nations of the Pacific, just behind the gross national products of Japan and the People's Republic of China."

Business sources say the emergence of Los Angeles as a world trade center is just beginning. As the developing nations produce more spendable income, the products of the United States are expected to reach every part of the vast trading area.

Earnings per share were $9.70 on 1,565,951 shares compared with $1.81 on 1,525,615 shares, which has been restated to reflect the 5 per cent stock dividend declared and paid during the year ended June 30, 1974.

May Co. reveals personnel shifts

Robert Schinkel has been named general manager of May Co. Buena Park. He joined the company in January, 1969, as buyer-handbags and has most recently been general manager of May Co. Whittier.

Irwin Mervish has been named general manager of the West Los Angeles store. He was then promoted to head of stock, department manager, and then divisional sales manager of the Lakewood store.

Stephan Regan has replaced Mervish as general manager-Lakewood. He has previously held the same position at Buena Park.

George Foos, president of May Co. California, has announced the following appointments:

Sanford King has been appointed general manager of May Company Whittier. King joined the company in 1962 as a member of the sales staff at the Eastland store. He was then promoted to head of stock, department manager, and then divisional sales manager of the Lakewood store.

In 1969, King became buyer of boys' furnishings, and has most recently been buyer of the Mach Ten Shop.

American General Insurance Co. of Houston, Tex., reportedly is negotiating with Shareholders Capital on the purchase of management contracts the Los Angeles firm holds with six mutual funds.

Shareholders Capital noted its sale of an East Coast construction subsidiary had resulted in a realized loss of $3.3 million, while the closure of Tax-Exempt Bond Trusts Inc. lost about $800,000.

Edginton revives up over 1973

Edginton Oil Company (AMEX), of Long Beach, for the year ended June 30, earned $15,242,417 on revenues of $198,819,545, compared with net income of $2,820,334 on revenues of $71,956,826 in the preceding year, it reported this week.

Sports fans will get their fill on weekend

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

On days like today, I can't resist taking a new slap at the idiots who attempt to appear superior by saying, for perhaps the millionth time, "There's never anything good on television."

Hogwash!

Just consider what the tube is offering us today in sports coverage alone — and reflect on how lucky we are compared with everyone back in the days before television.

Channel 11 brings the important baseball game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds into our homes, starting at 11:10 a.m.

Channel 7 presents the UCLA Bruins' opening football game against Tennessee at Knoxville, beginning at 1:15 p.m.

Tennis, everyone? Channel 2 offers the women's singles championship match in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., starting at noon.

Golf fans can tune in the World Series of Golf competition in Akron, Ohio, at 2 p.m. on Channel 4.

Basketball buffs can

KLAC to mark fourth year of country music

KLAC, the Metromedia radio outlet in Los Angeles, will celebrate the fourth year of its country music format Saturday, Sept. 14 at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys. Appearing with the KLAC personalities for the event will be such performers as Conway Twitty, Don Gibson, Stuart Hamblen, Jerry Naylor, Johnny Bond and Donny and Marie Osmond.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. Redd Foxx, Evel Knievel, Russia's Moiseyev Dance Company, illusionists Jim Stafford, Olivia Newton-John, the Andrews Sisters and Donny and Marie Osmond all take part on "Andy Williams Presents," from 9 to 10.

UCLA vs. Tennessee: Veer-y interesting

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—There are 36 major college football teams using the Veer offense this fall. Two of the best—UCLA and Tennessee—collide today.

The Bruins have traded the omni-present smog of Southern California for the oft-oppressive humidity of Knoxville at the foot of the Great Smokey Mountains.

A Neyland Stadium crowd of 55,000 and a national television audience of millions will witness whether the Bruins or host Volunteers have learned their option lessons the best.

Oddsmakers favor the Blue and Gold from Westwood to rule by seven points and present new coach Dick Vermeil a victory in his debut.

More than a meeting of two schools steeped in football tradition or option-oriented offenses, today's 1974 college football inaugural presents two of the nation's masters at football sleight-of-hand.

Tennessee's Condredge Holloway is a magician of the present. A senior, he was one of only five underclassmen among the first 15 Heisman Trophy finishers a year ago.

UCLA's John Sciarrà is the magician of the future. Only a junior, he looms as UCLA's first four-year letterman in more than 20 years.

Holloway is a living legend in the South for turning broken plays into spectacular gains. "I guess you just have to say he's indescribable," says his coach, Bill Battle.

After suffering through Condredge's dipsy-do one afternoon last season, Alabama's Bear Bryant was heard to say, "Condredge has more moves and is harder to get hold of than any back I ever saw."

Sciarrà is hardly a living legend. He doesn't even rank as the top quarterback in town.

Like Holloway, Sciarrà's best talents are magnified by a pass-run offense. He labored behind Mark Harmon for two seasons while the Bruins smashed records with their Wishbone offense.

That offense had little use for the pass. The unveiling of Sciarrà's right arm begins today.

Vermeil remains reserved in praise of his quarterback and his team.

"John has made real progress in his throwing, but there is a difference between being a thrower and having the poise and confidence to be a good passer. He has looked good so far.

"To beat Tennessee we're going to have to play mistake-free football, and we have not been playing that way on the practice field."

Vermeil would rather not place too much emphasis on this contest between his 12th-ranked Bruins and Battle's 15th-rated Vols.

"I feel right now we are three or four weeks away from becoming real efficient in running our Veer. I hope it's not a high-scoring game, because we're not yet ready to score a lot of points."

The key cards today may be held by the defenses. Tennessee's defense has long been noted for its stinginess, but last year was embarrassing. UCLA is a brawnier bunch, but early September Saturdays in Knoxville are strength-sapping. The Bruin reserves can expect a quick baptism under fire chasing Mr. Holloway.

Dodgers win round one on 3-run Garvey homer

The power and glory

Steve Garvey is congratulated by host of Dodgers, including Bill Buckner and Jimmy Wynn, after blasting three-run homer in first inning against Cincinnati.

Wynn and Buckner were on base when Garvey stroked game-winning blow. Dodgers won, 3-1.

Riverfront Stadium A three-day World Series

CINCINNATI—Is Cincinnati excited about its hometown series with the Dodgers?

"Reds, Dodgers Condense Season into Three Days," screams a page one story in the Cincinnati Inquirer.

"That's funny," said the Dodgers' Bill Buckner. "I thought we had to play 162 games."

THE BASEBALL writing fraternity is excited.

Scribes from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and San Diego are in town to lend a World Series atmosphere to the series.

Even a writer from the Lansing, Mich., State-Journal—Steve Garvey's hometown newspaper—showed up.

The Dodgers' press corps consists of eight writers, the most of any trip this season.

Said the San Diego writer, who was given a sabbatical for a few days from covering the Padres: "This is the first important game I've covered since opening day."

MOST OF the Dodgers walked the few blocks from their hotel to Riverfront Stadium rather than take a bus.

Pete Rose was hardly surprised when he saw the Dodgers filing into the clubhouse at midafternoon.

"If we were 2½ games ahead," said Pete, "I'd sleep out here."

ROSE SAID he had thought that the Reds would be in first place by now because of the Dodgers' loss of Tommy John.

"You've got to give the Dodgers credit," he said. "A lot of clubs would have packed it in by now, losing a guy like John. The Dodgers actually have played better since he got hurt."

Tommy said that he may face surgery to correct the ligament damage in his left arm, injured July 17.

"Dr. (Frank) Jobe says I should have the operation," said John, who continues to pitch batting practice with his arm heavily taped.

POSTSCRIPT on umpire Jerry Dale's blunder of last week, when he called out Joe Morgan at the plate before TV replays showed that the Cincinnati second baseman clearly had been safe:

A Cincinnati councilman, Charles P. Taft, introduced a resolution—which was adopted—that read among the "whereases": "We wuz robbed."

"Shock and dismay at the atrocious call" is expressed in the resolution, which concludes: "Dale blew the call."

Copies of the official act have been sent to the commissioner of baseball, the president of the National League and the umpires' organization.

Nolan Ryan duels Bob Feller tonight

By DON MERRY

Staff Writer

How fast is Nolan Ryan?

"Faster than instant coffee," claims Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's.

The world will find out exactly how quick Ryan's famous fastball moves to-night when a team of scientists from Rockwell International use an infrared radar device to clock his hummer while he faces the Chicago White Sox.

Game time is 7 p.m.

Ryan will be attempting to eradicate Bob Feller's 28-year-old record of 98.6 mph.

Now, if only someone can come up with a machine to time instant coffee...

On Friday, there was a ceremony for a hitter. It was as appropriate as it was light-hearted.

Moments after the Angels' 4-2 triumph over the Sox, a group of mischief-minded members of the media entered the clubhouse and bestowed a bottle of vintage champagne on Tom Egan, the catcher.

This was in commemoration of Egan's first RBI of the season — an event which occurred in the fourth inning of the 141st game of the year. Good-naturedly, Egan accepted the bubbly, took a long swing, and said, "This is the highlight of my career."

Egan, prior to Friday, had managed only two hits in 53 at-bats — an average of .038 and one which a mischievous Angel-management steadfastly refused to post on the scoreboard.

He had only one hit in his last 51 swings — .019 if you are computing — and his last base hit was only a distant memory, having come on June 29.

But in the fourth inning, Egan stroked a Wilbur Wood knuckler into centerfield to score Dave

Angel of Day

TOM EGAN drove in his first run of the year as Angels defeated Chicago, 4-2.

Chalk with the final run of a four-run uprising, which insured rookie Frank Tannana's 10th triumph.

Naturally, Egan has had to endure more than his share of taunts and barbs from his teammates. Even the fans were beginning to get on him.

Things became so bad on Thursday that for the first time in his 11-year professional career, he went up to the plate as a left-handed hitter — the results were two strikeouts in two trips.

"I didn't get down because I know I can catch and throw," he said with a smile Friday night. "But it has been frustrating, not being able to hit. If I hadn't been doing the job behind the plate I'd really be a basket case."

ANGEL ANGLES: The Angels received almost 7,000 entries in the Nolan Ryan Fastball Contest but 700 won't be counted because they arrived too late. Estimates on speed ranged from 48 to 200 mph with the median in the 99-100 range. Thirty-eight states were represented along with 282 cities in California. On the number of pitches Ryan will throw tonight against Chicago when his fastball will be timed by Rockwell International, guesses ranged from six to 158.

WBC featherweight title bout at Olympic Marcano-Chacon - 'man against boy'?

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

Order of a sort will be restored to the world featherweight title scene tonight when Bobby Chacon fights Venezuela's Alfredo Marcano for the vacant World Boxing Council seat at the Olympic Auditorium.

The 15-round bout starts at 6 p.m., following a 5:30 prelim. There will be no radio or television except in Venezuela, so it would be cheaper to buy a ticket ($25, $15 and $10), plenty of which remain.

Ruben Olivares, the former bantamweight champion, last month stepped up to win the World Boxing Association's title recognition at the Forum against an obscure Japanese opponent named Zen-suke Utawaga.

Marcano, formerly the world junior lightweight titleholder, is stepping down to meet Chacon.

It's something of a comedown for Bobby, too. The Sylmar chicken rancher, whose only loss was to Olivares, was paid $56,000 for beating contender Danny Lopez recently. Each fighter receives $20,000 tonight.

Tale of the tape

CHACON	MARCANO
AGE	27
HEIGHT	5'6"
WEIGHT	126
REACH	70
CHEST (STRETCH)	37
CHEST (EXP.)	30
WAIST	30
NECK	15
FADE	13
FOREARM	12
WRIST	7
FIST	12

Marcano's record isn't as flashy — 44-9-4 with 30 knockouts — but he appears stronger than Chacon in power and stamina. He's gone 15 rounds once and 10 rounds 19 times. Chacon has had to last 10 rounds only twice.

The Venezuelan cockily views the match as a man against a boy, but perhaps too much so. Accustomed to fighting at up to 132 pounds, he must reach 126 by today's 10 a.m. weigh-in, and early this week he was seen working out in a rubber sweatshirt in the 110-degree discomfort of Howie Steinberg's Main Street Gym.

Chacon's training was interrupted by a hand injury, causing the fight to be postponed from Aug. 3, but his training seems to have proceeded nicely since.

The fight was given WBC sanction after that organization defrocked Chacon's Eder Jofre.

Marcano lost his junior lightweight title to Ben Villafior two years ago on a 15-round decision — a "hometown" decision, Marcano claims through interpreters.

'Flattery' and $100,000 gets Lakers Cazzie

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Cazzie Russell admits he was flattered.

The hot-shooting forward who played out his option with the Golden State Warriors last season signed a multi-year contract with the Lakers Friday that was believed to be in excess of $100,000 per year.

"I'm flattered that the Lakers went all out to get me," said the 10-year veteran who is regarded by many as the best-shooting forward in the NBA. He averaged 20.3 points last year playing mostly as a reserve.

"I'm saying this with humility," the 6-foot-5, 220-pounder went on, "but I've finally got a contract I deserve."

Whether it costs owner Jack Kent Cooke even more remains to be seen.

The Lakers did not com-

LBCC holds picture day

The Long Beach City Vikings will hold picture day this afternoon at 4 p.m. at Veterans Stadium.

The one-hour session is open to family and friends interested in photographing members of the football team.

The Vikings will hold their first scrimage of the season against Santa Ana College, at 7:30 p.m. at Veterans Stadium.

The Vikings will practice twice-a-day next week before encountering Harbor College next Saturday, in another scrimmage. On Saturday Sept. 21, the Vikings will begin their 1974 season at Citrus College.

"If they want me to shoot, fine," says Russell. "My only aim is to assist the team in any way I can. I'm proud to be able to play with the kind of players the Lakers have."

Russell says he has no specific goals, although coach Bill Sharman has said he expects the 30-year-old former University of Michigan all-American to provide most of the scoring power up front.

"They want me to shoot, fine," says Russell. "My only aim is to assist the team in any way I can. I'm proud to be able to play with the kind of players the Lakers have."

A health food addict, the glib bachelor says the Lakers should be title contenders, but he won't go so far as to say he is the man to take them all the way.

"I don't need that kind of pressure," he laughs. "Anyways, no one man can carry a team."

Shuman prefers the fast-break style of play and says that Russell is the "perfect man" for his system.

The coach refuses to comment on whether or not Russell will be a starter, ahead of veteran Happy Hairston or Connie Hawkins.

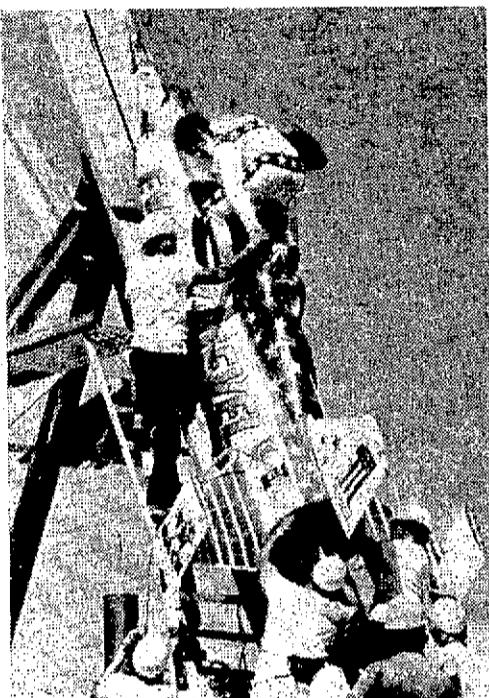

The Rams will try McGee at wide receiver.

Rams acquire Willie McGee

The Rams acquired wide receiver Willie McGee from the San Diego Chargers Friday for an undisclosed future draft choice.

McGee, 24, a 5-11, 178-pound, second-year player from Alcorn A&M, equalled the world record for 100 yards when it was 9.1. He also plays cornerback and is used for kick returns.

Whitworth shares Dallas golf lead

DALLAS (UPI) — Defending champion Kathy Whitworth, looking for her second tour victory of the year, fired a two-under-par 70 Friday to share the first-round lead in the $47,500 Dallas Civitan Ladies Open with Shelley Hamlin and Jan Ferraris.

Miss Whitworth, 34 and complaining of a case of nerves, lost her chance for the undisputed lead by knocking her tee shot in a trap on the par-3 16th for a bogey-4.

Although it is almost certain she will lose her money winning title after leading for four consecutive years, she said she wants to play a conservative round and let the weather do what it wanted."

Hamlin and Ferraris shot 35-35-70s over the rugged, 6,336-yard, par-72 Brookhaven Country Club course. In at one-under 71 were Muriel Breer, Noni Schneider, Jo Ann Carner and Kathy Farrar.

The bubbly Miss Hamlin, who never has won a tour event, credited an

"Arnold Palmer type shot" on the ninth hole with saving her round.

Laura Baugh was tied with four others three strokes behind the leaders. Miss Baugh carded a

Kuhn to investigate Yank owner severs team connections

NEW YORK (UPI) — On the morning after his team moved into undisputed possession of first place in the American League East, George Steinbrenner agreed Friday to withdraw from all activities involving the New York Yankees for at least a month until baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn can rule on his status.

Steinbrenner, 44, a general partner of the Yankees since January of 1973, was fined $15,000 last week for illegal campaign contributions and the American Shipbuilding Company, of which he is board chairman and chief executive officer, was fined $20,000 for conspiracy to violate federal election campaign laws.

Kuhn said Friday that he had met Edward Bennett Williams, Steinbrenner's attorney, Thursday and it was mutually agreed that, pending a final decision, Steinbrenner would withdraw from all activities concerning the Yankees and would refrain from all contacts with the front office, uniformed and other personnel of the club.

"I have granted Mr. Williams' request to present a written submission on Mr. Steinbrenner's behalf," Kuhn said in a prepared statement. "The submission will be filed on Sept. 26 and I will meet Mr. Williams again on Oct. 4. If the arguments of counsel are not persuasive, I will conduct a formal hearing thereafter."

"While I would prefer to resolve the matter more promptly, I have agreed to this schedule in the interest of fairness and in light of the serious nature of the questions before me."

Steinbrenner, in New York, said of the decision: "We are in complete accord with commissioner Kuhn's action reached Friday by mutual agreement. We are going to welcome the opportunity to present to him the accurate facts of this matter."

Szewinska doubles in Europe championships

ROME (UPI) — Irena Szewinska of Poland became the first double gold medalist on the fourth day of the European track and field championships Friday and Russia boosted its gold medal total to seven to take command of the over-all standings before 50,000 fans in the Olympic stadium..

Mrs. Szewinska added the 200 meters title to the 100 meters she won on Tuesday with another victory over East Germany's reigning champion, Renate Stecher. The long-legged Pole came off the bend trailing by a meter but stormed past on the straight to take the gold in 22.51 seconds with Finland's Mona-Lisa Purssainen taking the bronze to repeat the order of the 100 meters.

Russia's medals came in the women's discus, where world record holder Faina Melnik threw 226-4 1/2 — almost 13 feet further than her nearest rival, and the pole vault, which was won by Vladimir Kishkun over Poland's Wladislaw Kozakiewicz, with fewer misses at 17-6 1/4.

The men's shotput title was successfully defended by Hartmut Brieseck of East Germany with a throw of 67-3. West German Ralf Reichenbach was second and England's Geoff Capes was third, although he became the first Briton since 1958 to medal in the event.

Russia now has seven gold, two silver and five bronze, while East Germany moved into second place with 37-2 with Finland having a 3-0-3 medal count.

The South Coast Cactus and Succulent Society will hold its monthly meeting Sunday at the South Coast Botanic Gardens, 28701 Rolling Hills Road, Palos Verdes Peninsula, at 1:30 p.m.

Members are asked to bring one of their favorite cactus or succulent plants and discuss why it is their favorite and give hints on its culture.

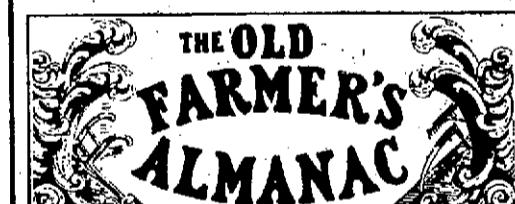

Suggestions for Sept. plantings

Perennial plants, shrubs, trees, vines, certain annuals and bulbs, are being planted this month. Sod lawns too, but if hybrid bermuda is to be started from sprigs, and dichondra or bermuda are going to be seeded for a lawn, it is a bit late for them, unless the gardener doesn't mind if the seed in lawns don't fully cover the ground by cold weather. Likewise, St. Augustine, if clump or sprigs planted won't completely cover the soil before cold weather.

PLANT flower seeds of: Sweet alyssum only on slopes and banks, or confined areas away from garden or lawn, because it will become invasive and may take over an area. Anemone, snapdragon, arctotis, English daisy, brachycome, calendula, candytuft, centaurea, wallflower, cineraria, clarkia, cymoglossum, delphinium, dimorphotheca, California poppy, gaillardia, gerbera, godetia, gypsophila, coral bell, larkspur, linaria, nigonette, myosotis, nasturtium, pansy, viola, Iceland poppy, primula malacoides, rudbeckia, salpiglossis, stock, statice and Shasta daisy.

PLANT flowers of: Foxy foxglove, primavera chrysanthemum, gerbera, poppy, calendula, niemergia, English daisy, alyssum, dimorphotheca, anemone, candytuft, wallflower, delphinium, gaillardia, statice, fall chrysanthemum, day lily, agapanthus, coral bell, salvia, outdoor violet, sweet pea and primula polyanthus.

SOW VEGETABLE seeds of: Bush beans, beets, broccoli, brussel sprout, cabbage, carrot, cauliflower, lettuce, onion, parsley, parsnip, pea, radish, salsify, spinach, swiss chard and turnip. Set out herbs plants.

SEPT. 9-15, 1974

Clouds race space, brisk and bright all right.

Trees are starting to turn now... Uncle Sam born Sept. 13, 1765... Third quarter of the moon Sept. 9, and a new moon Sept. 15... The autumnal migration of the birds is now at its height... Average length of days for the week, 12 hours, 42 minutes... C. Columbus finally back in Spain Sept. 12, 1504... Cranberries are harvested now... Two sparrows on the same ear of corn are not long friends.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What changes a pear into a pearl? (Answer below.)

Ask the old Farmer: What is the origin of the term "Indian giver"? Does it really have anything to do with Indians? B. G., Worcester, Mass.

According to the tradition, the Indian understood swapping and honored such a trade. But if he gave anything to another, he retained his interest in it, and felt free to take it back if he felt like it.

Home Hint: If you want to keep suet shoes looking fresh, rub them with a piece of stale rye bread after each wearing... Riddle answer: The letter "U".

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

A home gardener had a refreshing idea in civic beautification by making an attractive cleanly landscaped parking area between the sidewalk and the curb. He planted three flower beds of Iceland Poppies with a buffer of red brick surrounding them. It was not only a colorful winter planting, but an eye-catcher for motorists driving past.

Iceland poppies grow quite fast and blossom for a long period before they finally finish blooming. They can be planted now if space is available in a sunny flower bed. There's no limit to where they can be planted in a sunny area. Perhaps there's a narrow space between a garden walk and wall; an outdoor planter that is part of the house wall unit; bordering a driveway and a walk; or a narrow section where fall-winter garden color is desired.

SEEDS may be sown right where the plants are to grow, provided the soil is moist and enriched with organic matter. The seeds are very fine and should not be hand-scattered until they first have been mixed with soil, sand, or steer manure. The seeds are lightly sprinkled over a layer of one of the materials in a bucket, then gradually filled in layers thusly. Gardener then uses a trowel to mix. Then the mixed seed is uniformly scattered lightly over the soil the gardener had previously watered well. The mixed soil is lightly scratched into the ground then carefully watered, but not forming puddles. The planting area is kept moist till plants have sprouted. Snail bait periodically is scattered in the planting area till plants have grown several inches tall.

CALENDULAS of yellow and orange also grow fast and bloom in about the same time as do the Iceland poppies.

SEEDS of Sweet Peas are sown beginning this month. Plants too may be available at nurseries and garden shops. The plants are in plant bands. Some gardeners set the plants in those containers to grow on. Roots get a chance to grow quicker and spread out more if the plants are taken out of the plant bands.

Seeds are not sown in dry ground. The soil must be soaked at least 10 inches deep before planting. Plants will grow and

You only need one insecticide to control
two major lawn pests.

Spectracide®

Chinch bugs attack St. Augustine and cutworms can attack Dichondra. In either case they can destroy your treasured lawn in just days. Spectracide effectively controls them and many other insects that can attack your lawn. And you get a bonus, because Spectracide may be used to control flea beetles on tomatoes and some other vegetables. Get Spectracide. It's simple. It's sensible.

Theft at armory blamed on pros

FRESNO (UPI) — Investigators said Friday they believed the theft of rifles, pistols, grenade launchers and some 4,500 rounds of ammunition from the California Army National Guard Armory here was committed by highly skilled professionals.

"They got by a new and very sophisticated alarm system," one agent said. "And they had to be real professionals to do that."

Agent John Lowney said so far there were no suspects in the theft, which occurred earlier this week.

"We have a lot of work to do," he said. "So far the investigation is still in the preliminary stages."

Two keys were believed used, one to open the armory itself and the other to open the vault.

Beating costs policeman job

OAKLAND (UPI) — A decorated patrolman has been fired for beating a handcuffed prisoner with his baton in a patrol wagon, it was announced Friday.

Robert E. Sloan, 29, who joined the force five years ago and was decorated two years ago for talking an armed man out of killing himself, was dismissed Thursday after a fellow officer reported the incident.

A police spokesman said the beating took place after a Mexican was taken into custody as a result of barroom fight. The victim was later deported, but this was not connected with the incident.

Before being handcuffed, the man struck Sloan with the officer's own baton, the spokesman said.

When the man was placed in the wagon, he said, Sloan assaulted him.

Sources said the incident came to light when another patrolman who witnessed the beating resigned from the force and told his superiors about Sloan.

SMOG REPORT

The Air Pollution Control District predicts light to moderate smog tomorrow in parts of the Antelope Valley. The APD issues the following forecast for atmospheric conditions:

Ozone — Maximum levels of .30 parts per million in the East San Fernando and Pomona-Walnut Valleys; .25 parts per million in the central and remainder of the county.

Smog effects — Moderate in the East San Fernando, San Gabriel and Pomona-Walnut Valleys; light elsewhere.

MRS. FLOREA stated in the action the bawdy house episode was a carefully guarded secret, unknown to Mrs. Florea's family and friends, including country club, television and theatrical and social circles in Beverly Hills and Palm Springs.

She said Florea, who produced and directed several major TV series including "Mission Impossible," "Bonanza," "The Virginian," and "Honey West," promised he would keep her secret.

IN JUNE OF this year, the suit alleged, during divorce proceedings, Florea "intentionally, willfully and maliciously and in violation of his duties and obligations as a man, husband and gentleman, mailed a print of the Eureka arrest 'mug shot' together with a copy of the record to all of Mrs. Florea's friends and relatives."

THE BEST price for things you want most may be in the appliance column of today's Classified Ads.

Visible — Minimums of 2 miles in the central and coastal areas, and 3 to 6 miles elsewhere.
